Wants Them to Come From Higher Gift, Estate Taxes

OUTLINES PROGRAM

Highway Marking and Safety Promotion Included in Call

Madison—(AP)—Governor LaFollette's call for a special session of the legislature to start Wednesday, limits the lawmakers' means of raising funds for relief to extension and increase of taxes on property gifts and inheritances.

The call specifically lists these taxes, even to the subsection numbers, and in the case of a surtax on gifts and inheritances fixes the figure at 30 per cent.

The governor told a press conference today these levies would replenish the general fund by 1941 with the $3,000,000 estimated as necessary for relief from now until 1939.

Relief would be continued on an emergency basis under the administration bill, Governor LaFollette said.

Extension of these taxes as defined by the call would carry them over through the next administration in effect "mortgaging" these incomes from 1939 to 1941 to pay expenses during the present biennium.

Governor's Proposals

The governor proposed extension of the property gift tax, extended by the 1937 legislature until 1939, to July 1, 1941; placing a surtax of 30 per cent on such levies; increasing from 25 to 30 per cent the surtax on inheritances and abolishing the present deduction of $100 now allowed on such payments.

An unexpected addition to the call was subject of increasing allotments to the highway commission for marking and promoting safety.

Governor LaFollette explained that alteration of income tax laws was included in the call at the tax commission's request only to provide a method of clarifying statutes placed in doubt by recent court decisions.

"The bill was drawn by the tax commission at its request because there are sections of the statutes which provide for the giving of notice of assessments in back income tax cases," the governor said.

Affects Pending Cases

One of the lower courts has interpreted that like a statute, limitations. If that court's interpretation were correct it would mean that certain tax cases that are now pending would be barred from litigation after six years.

"In practice the bill will affect only cases now pending before the commission."

The governor said most of the legislators whom he has consulted favor a short session.

"The legislature could dispose of a considerable amount of business in three weeks period," he said.

"If they don't want to, they can't,"—adding he would not amend his call without conferring again with legislative leaders.

He said both Progressives and opposition leaders like Senators Harry W. Bolens (D), Port Washington, and Maurice Coakley (R), Beloit, had agreed to a special set of rules to speed up action at the session.

Probe Plane Collision In Which Four Perished

South Bend, Ind.—(AP)—Investigators sought to place blame today for an airplane collision 500 feet above the ground that took four lives near here.

Two planes, banking from opposite directions for a landing on Bendix field, St. Joseph county airport, came together yesterday.

One, a cabin monoplane, dived into a field south of the airport and killed all its occupants. They were Floyd Alumbaugh, about 40, Elkhart, Ind., and Chicago, at the controls; Lloyd Butz, 32, Mishawaka; Mrs. Abbie M. Beebe, 32, wife of Albert E. Beebe, South Bend, and Fred B. Kidder, about 50, Houlton, Maine.

The other, a monoplane, slid to a safe landing in brush in the same field. Charles Selke, 19, the pilot, and Donald Eldredge, Jr., 16, both of South Bend, were hurt.

CHECKMATE

Some one points out that even if congress should pass a law remodeling the supreme court, the latter could still declare the law unconstitutional. There, that should effectively stop the argument and con for a while. And enable us to get a word in edgewise in praise of the Post-Crescent Want Ad below, which needed no remodeling, judging from results it brought:

FRANKLIN ST. E. 110 — Modern furnished rooms. Garage if wanted.

Rented 2 rooms and garage by 5 o'clock first night ad appeared.

U.S. Moves to Assure 'Easy' Rates on Loans

Government Wants Ample Supplies of Lendable Funds in Nation

2 MAIN PROVISIONS

Release 'Frozen' Gold to Buy Short-Term Government Securities

Washington—(AP)—The government began today a new credit-easing course of action designed to assure continuance of the "easy" money which fiscal authorities have credited with spurring business recovery.

It provides, (1) for expenditure of $300,000,000 of the treasury's "frozen" gold—the first release since the gold "sterilization" program was begun last December; and (2) for open market purchases of short-term government securities.

Fiscal authorities kept a close watch on the day's erratic stock market, but official comments on effects of the new credit program were few.

Noting early market gains and the later sharp recession, one high fiscal authority said it appeared many traders merely had been waiting a slight upward tilt in quotations to renew the liquidation movement of recent days.

Stocks mounted one to three points in an opening market rally, but later selling pressure wiped out gains and cut some securities to even lower levels.

This program was agreed upon late yesterday by the federal reserve board. Fiscal experts said it was a logical continuation of the board's recent policy of lowering rediscount rates of reserve banks.

It also marked, they said, a distinct reversal of the policy of tightening money rates initiated with the gold sterilization program. At that time, however, banks held large surplus lendable funds. The policy then was to prevent credit inflation.

Assures Ample Funds

The open market purchases of federal securities will be made by the reserve board's open market committee. The effect of both this operation and the release of gold from the treasury's inactive account will be to swell banks' supplies of excess reserves, or lendable money.

These reserves, which form the basis for credit expansion, now total about $750,000,000. Although the reserve board was said to consider this sum presently adequate to provide an abundance of credit at low interest rates, officials cited that fall and Christmas currency and credit demands customarily reduce the reserve to about $400,000,000 to $600,000,000.

Reserve board officials said the new credit program would be so operated as to maintain excess reserves at approximately their present level.

In releasing $300,000,000 of its $1,370,000,000 "sterilized" gold holdings, the treasury will issue that sum of gold certificates to federal reserve banks, which will credit the treasury with a $300,000,000 deposit. The treasury then can draw on this deposit for day-to-day spending and the money will flow into commercial banks, increasing their lendable funds.

Chinese Forces Retreat Under Japanese Fire

Withdraw to Strong 2nd Line Defense Trenches Near Shanghai

RETREAT IS ORDERLY

Cholera Becomes More Threatening in International Areas

BY JAMES A. MILLS

Shanghai—(AP)—Under heavy fire from Japanese land and sea batteries, the Chinese army abandoned the hotly-fought Kiangwan salient north of Shanghai today and withdrew all forces to the powerfully fortified second line defense network of trenches stretching from Shanghai 25 miles to the northwest.

The Chinese retreat was orderly and strategic to prepared positions which they had expected to fall back on as soon as the full force of Japan's mechanized advance surged against them.

The Japanese followed hard on the heels of the retreating Chinese and quickly occupied the Far East road course and the now completely ruined Kiangwan civic center. The Chinese had held the area for a full month against the fiercest Japanese assaults.

Cholera, constant Oriental peril, took a grave turn in the international areas while 23 Americans were being evacuated on a United States warship.

Report American Stricken

There were unconfirmed reports that one American fell in Shanghai was dying of the dread disease. In all, there were 529 new cases in the foreign areas, 450 of them in the French concession, where most Americans live. The other 79 were in the international settlement.

Most of the victims were Chinese refugees who had fled into the foreign areas. Sixty had died in the last 48 hours.

The Chinese retreat to their secondary "Hindenburg" line will allow a concentration of greater strength, a Chinese spokesman explained.

Part of Plan

It was termed a scheduled plan to present a formidable defense from Lihuo to Lotien; from Lihuo to Nanking, out of the range of the deadly guns of Japanese warships in the harbor here.

The soft, soggy terrain also is expected to impede greatly the advance of Japanese tanks and artillery.

Chinese forces successfully fought off Japanese rear attacks during the withdrawal and in their wake left land mines. Several detachments of Japanese were blown up when hungry soldiers raced into fields to pick tomatoes and other vegetables, only to touch off the mines.

The total military area evacuated by the Chinese during the last month tonight was estimated at 150 square miles.

Three days of relentless air and artillery bombardment, at the same time, had started a series of new and extensive fires in Kiangwan, Yangtzeppoo and Hongkew, war-damaged districts to the north and west of the foreign areas.

Great sheets of flame, columns of smoke and showers of sparks gave the ravaged districts a pyrotechnic aspect that held spectators spellbound, yet terrified.

Marathon Contest Case Before Supreme Court

Madison—(AP)—The appeal of the city of Racine from a circuit court decision holding its ordinance against marathon contests, illegal was submitted to the state supreme court today without oral argument.

The high court will render its decision on the basis of briefs presented by the city and the S. M. Fox company which staged a show called Race of Nations at Racine in January, 1936. The Fox company obtained an injunction restraining the city from interfering with its operations.

The supreme court probably will not hand down its ruling until Oct. 12, which is the first decision day or the new term. The Racine ordinance prohibits marathon dances, walkathons, skatathons and similar endurance contests.

Marathon Contest Case Before Supreme Court

Madison—(AP)—The appeal of the city of Racine from a circuit court decision holding its ordinance against marathon contests, illegal was submitted to the state supreme court today without oral argument.

The high court will render its decision on the basis of briefs presented by the city and the S. M. Fox company which staged a show called Race of Nations at Racine in January, 1936. The Fox company obtained an injunction restraining the city from interfering with its operations.

The supreme court probably will not hand down its ruling until Oct. 12, which is the first decision day or the new term. The Racine ordinance prohibits marathon dances, walkathons, skatathons and similar endurance contests.

Chinese Forces Retreat Under Japanese Fire

Withdraw to Strong 2nd Line Defense Trenches Near Shanghai

RETREAT IS ORDERLY

Cholera Becomes More Threatening in International Areas

BY JAMES A. MILLS

Shanghai—(AP)—Under heavy fire from Japanese land and sea batteries, the Chinese army abandoned the hotly-fought Kiangwan salient north of Shanghai today and withdrew all forces to the powerfully fortified second line defense network of trenches stretching from Shanghai 25 miles to the northwest.

The Chinese retreat was orderly and strategic to prepared positions which they had expected to fall back on as soon as the full force of Japan's mechanized advance surged against them.

The Japanese followed hard on the heels of the retreating Chinese and quickly occupied the Far East road course and the now completely ruined Kiangwan civic center. The Chinese had held the area for a full month against the fiercest Japanese assaults.

Cholera, constant Oriental peril, took a grave turn in the international areas while 23 Americans were being evacuated on a United States warship.

Report American Stricken

There were unconfirmed reports that one American fell in Shanghai was dying of the dread disease. In all, there were 529 new cases in the foreign areas, 450 of them in the French concession, where most Americans live. The other 79 were in the international settlement.

Most of the victims were Chinese refugees who had fled into the foreign areas. Sixty had died in the last 48 hours.

The Chinese retreat to their secondary "Hindenburg" line will allow a concentration of greater strength, a Chinese spokesman explained.

Part of Plan

It was termed a scheduled plan to present a formidable defense from Lihuo to Lotien; from Lihuo to Nanking, out of the range of the deadly guns of Japanese warships in the harbor here.

The soft, soggy terrain also is expected to impede greatly the advance of Japanese tanks and artillery.

Chinese forces successfully fought off Japanese rear attacks during the withdrawal and in their wake left land mines. Several detachments of Japanese were blown up when hungry soldiers raced into fields to pick tomatoes and other vegetables, only to touch off the mines.

The total military area evacuated by the Chinese during the last month tonight was estimated at 150 square miles.

Three days of relentless air and artillery bombardment, at the same time, had started a series of new and extensive fires in Kiangwan, Yangtzeppoo and Hongkew, war-damaged districts to the north and west of the foreign areas.

Great sheets of flame, columns of smoke and showers of sparks gave the ravaged districts a pyrotechnic aspect that held spectators spellbound, yet terrified.

Adults Must Help Maintain Ideals, Young People Told

Dr. Carl Seitter Addresses Rally at Methodist Conference

The blame for the confused pattern which modern life has taken on and for the high mortality of ideals in this present day was placed on the shoulders of the adult generation rather than on youth by Dr. Carl Seitter, representative of the National Council of Methodist Youth, who addressed a young people's rally Saturday night at First Methodist Episcopal church in connection with the Wisconsin annual conference of Methodist Episcopal church.

He went on to say that if youth can do anything to work out the problems, the older people ought to encourage them and build with them, giving them the benefit of adult experience.

The time has come, the speaker said, when the church must step forward and wage into the problems which are troubling its people, must defend its people from the violence and oppressions which threaten, for, he continued, unless the church steps up and says what it has to say, it must step aside as it has had to do in Russia, Germany, Mexico and Spain.

Dr. Seitter pointed out that reports have come in that attendance and enrollment in church schools throughout Protestantism are rapidly declining, but that there are secular movements which are not declining. There are values which are lost, he added, and as long as the world consents to it, they are sinners in the eyes of God.

Outlines Work
Dr. Seitter spoke of the work of the National Council of Methodist Youth and expressed the belief that it has moved through the period of violent tension into a place where it has its feet planted firmly. Methodist youth, he believed, is the church is a channel through which they can work, he added.

Preceding his talk, Dr. Seitter installed the officers of the Wisconsin Conference Youth Council who were elected last May as follows: Miss Ruth Bottomley, Burlington, president; Miss Kay Helmer, Sheboygan Falls, vice president; George Behnke, Oshkosh; Vernon Hubbs, Seymour, treasurer; Charles Koerber, Milwaukee, National Council representative; Ross Pearson, Kenosha, president of Appleton district; Lester Roberts, Milwaukee, president of Milwaukee district; and Miss Dorothy Hintz, Oakfield, president of Watertown district.

A young people's banquet was held Saturday night, the theme being "Travel Life's Seas." The nautical idea was carried out in decorations and in program.

Madison—Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin told 1,000 Methodists there last night that many young men are being turned away from the pulpit because congregations make "errand boys" of their pastors.

Dr. Frank, who once rode a Methodist circuit himself, spoke at the annual Wisconsin conference of the church.

He indicted fellow laymen for asking that "the preacher be a jockey of all trades and damming him for not doing all well."

"If committee work must be done and errands run, let the laity do it," he said.

He added that many persons, who "preach as if they were preaching to the pulpit," have found an outlet for their ministerial work in other fields. Theodore Roosevelt and his "square deal" were an example, he said.

Insurgent Forces Advance Six Miles
Move Forward to Government's Defense Positions in Biscayan Area

Hondarribia, Franco-Spanish frontier—Spanish insurgents today broke through Franco-Spanish government lines in Leon province and advanced six miles toward the government's Biscayan defense positions.

Insurgents said their airplanes smashed resistance south of the Europa mountains in a renewal of large-scale fighting. The attacking column is seeking to join insurgent coastal forces in an assault on Ribadesella, eastern gateway to the ultimate insurgent objectives in Asturias.

Earlier, Gorrilla warfare had ignited the insurgent march toward Gijon, last government stronghold in northern Spain.

Marriage Licenses Issued to Seventy Couples in August

Dan Cupid evidently sees a bright outlook for the immediate future for the last month. A total of 70 licenses were issued during August at the office of John E. Hantschel, Outagamie county clerk, the largest number for any August in the last 14 years.

There were 64 licenses issued in July and 60 in August of last year. A total of 434 licenses were issued by the county clerk up to Sept. 1 this year.

Methodists Defer Action on Social Service Report

Delegates to Study Committee Findings Before Making Decision

A report of the social service committee related to motion pictures, war, social legislation and national issues was presented Saturday afternoon to the ninety-first Wisconsin annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and delegates voted to defer action until next year.

After several delegates stated the recommendations were of a controversial nature and they preferred an opportunity to consider the report at length, a unanimous vote was registered to defer action and distribute copies to the delegates.

Betterment of motion pictures shown in communities was suggested through cooperation between ministers and theater operators and preview showings on films considered to be of an objectionable nature. The committee recommended ministers and councils of churches should not be hesitant to condemn immoral pictures or movies unfit for children.

Oppose War
Opposition to war was cited in the report and the government advised that it was urged to proceed on the basis of the present neutrality act in keeping the United States out of foreign entanglements.

Legislation was urged against shipments of armaments to foreign countries both in war and peace times. A peace amendment to the constitution was recommended making it impossible to draft the youth of the nation for warfare unless the country was attacked.

The committee proposed manufacture of armaments for defense purposes only.

Study of the cooperative movement in the United States and relationships between industry and workers was recommended with a view to adopting programs to be carried out by the church.

Face Confusion
Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, St. Louis, said pastors were facing a "terrible confusion" because of variant interpretations included in works of church leaders, and the movement for unifying the churches would eliminate this confusion. He said a proposed world council of churches would speak in one voice for all Protestant churches on world issues and beliefs.

An incomplete report of the nominations committee authorized to complete the nominations for 1938-39 after the close of the conference.

Green Outlaws Newspaper Guild

News and Editorial Employees to be Invited to Join New Unions

St. Louis—(7)—Severance of the American Newspaper Guild from the American Federation of Labor was absolute today with outlaws of the CIO unit by AFL President William Green.

Green said all state and central AFL bodies will be instructed to expel local chapters of the guild "as they are no longer eligible to membership because of their association with the CIO."

The action followed by three months the guild's convention decision here to affiliate with the John L. Lewis group, which guild headquarters said has been supported 3,392 to 1,691 by a membership vote.

In a "militant drive" against the CIO guild, the AFL president explained in a prepared statement, "all news and editorial employees of newspapers will be invited to join federal unions organized by the AFL" which "will be accorded the fullest support by the mechanical trades union of the AFL."

He declared the AFL "for fifty years has been fighting for a free press" warning that guild members "may be committed by their association with the CIO to a definite political policy."

"Can the public be expected, under such circumstances, to place its trust in the impartiality of newspaper reports?" Green commented, and added the federation "will use every resource at its command to combat and destroy such a menace."

Sino-Jap Situation in Brief

By the Associated Press
Shanghai—Chinese defense troops executed orderly withdrawal from hotly-contested Kiangwan sector north of Shanghai to strongly entrenched second line of resistance stretching from Shanghai 25 miles to the northwest. Chinese spread in foreign areas, American reported dying; warship evacuated 23 Americans toward Hong Kong and United States.

Hong Kong—P. V. Thomas, head of American Seventh Day Adventist Mission hospital at Waichow, charged Japanese with deliberate bombing of hospital, despite prominently displayed American flags.

Shanghai—Leaders of China's powerful communist armies, incorporated now into central government forces, announced troops were on march against Japanese in North China.

Peiping—Heavy fighting reported between Chinese and Japanese armies along Peiping-Hankow rail line 30 miles south of Peiping. Japanese admitted Chinese broke through Japanese lines yesterday but said they later were "surrounded and annihilated." Sounds of battle continued, however.

Tokio—United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew asked Japanese government to exercise every care to avoid endangering American nationals being evacuated from interior of China.

Union Refuses to Dismiss Costello

Also Votes to Retain Three Other Officers Ordered Ousted by A. F. L.

Kenosha—(7)—The Simmons' Company Federal Labor union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, refused yesterday to oust its president, Emil Costello, temporary chairman of the state committee for Industrial Organization, and three other union officers.

The four union heads had been ordered suspended by William Green, A. F. of L. president, for "insubordination" and for supporting "dual unionism."

Union officers said the 2,000 delegates who jammed Moore hall gave the four leaders a rousing 3 to 1 vote of confidence.

Costello's dismissal order was drawn up last week by Paul Smith, Green's personal representative, and Attorney Joseph A. Padway, state A. F. of L. counsel.

Costello, commenting on the vote of the membership, said: "This is our answer to the union busting of William Green, his executive committee and their tools."

Besides Costello, Fred Podella, Frank Witmar and Archie Bridges, all union trustees, were named in the dismissal order by Green. Padway, in Kenosha Sunday, issued a statement saying:

"The meeting was not a lawful one. The call for the meeting was signed by Podella, who has been suspended, so he could not lawfully call it. The meeting was presided over by Costello, who also has been suspended and had no right to preside."

Labor's Private War May Force Government To Regulate Unions

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
Washington—If you're interested in every-day economics, you can disregard most of the pretty Labor Day messages and orations, and concentrate on this fact:

Just so long as John L. Lewis' CIO and William Green's A. F. of L. continue their struggle for supremacy, there will exist pressure for the federal government to step in and regulate the new-found strength of organized labor.

Proof of that is already in the record. Last spring congress made gestures toward passing a law to penalize reckless labor acts after the sit-down strike had stretched public patience almost to the breaking point. The senate went so far as to denounce the sit-down technique. It was even suggested that labor organizations be incorporated—an idea detestable to every true union man. Senator Vandenberg of Michigan proposed to punish irresponsible labor groups by prohibiting their collection of union dues.

Nobody Does Anything
The laws proposed last spring are merely sleeping until public opinion again presses them into the legislative hopper. Next time they may not die, particularly if labor's private war puts both employers and the public "in the middle."

President's Warning
President Roosevelt himself has warned federal employees they have no right to strike.

No federal employee has made the slightest move to strike. Then why did the President warn them? Because the rival labor camps are organizing unions among federal workers.

The President has gone out of his way to express his apprehension. He has attempted to choke off the growth of a power that one day could challenge the dignity of government itself.

That can reflect nothing less than a Presidential temper to head off and prevent excesses in labor activity—a disposition to regulate, if that should be necessary.

A Case In Court
Simultaneously, a clear-cut test case between the Green federation and the Lewis CIO is heading toward the Supreme Court from Ambler, Pa., home of the National Electric Products corporation.

That corporation signed up with the A. F. of L. unions, only to come face to face with a CIO contest before the national labor relations board. The CIO electrical union charged the company with coercing employees to join the A. F. of L. rival.

Green's faction promptly appealed to a federal district court, which just as promptly wrote its okay on the federation contract. But the labor relations board ordered the employees to the ballot box to determine whether CIO or A. F. of L. had a majority. Another federal court has declined to interfere with the board.

Regulation Begins
Now where does that leave the warring groups within labor's ranks? Just here:

One faction of labor (CIO) is testing in the courts a closed shop contract under the national labor relations law, for such was the contract signed by the electrical corporation and A. F. of L. In other words, CIO has brought into question the principle of the closed shop—the principle for which it long has fought—in order to protect its rights in Ambler, Pa.

The courts may not have to pass directly on the point, but one side will win the case somewhere along the court line, and the public will form its own opinions accordingly.

Thus the regulation of labor through interpretation of its own magna charta—the national labor relations act—has already begun.

All these things reflect a mounting pressure to impose unwelcome responsibilities on organized labor; and as long as labor's internecine war continues, that pressure will remain to plague labor's hard won advances.

New and Better Vegetables Aim Of Plant Breeder

Tastes, Preferences in Vegetables Highly Localized, Report Says

Tastes and preferences in vegetables are highly localized both in this and in other countries, one United States Department of Agriculture bulletin received by R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, states.

Part of the department's 1937 yearbook is devoted to the breeding of new and better vegetables. Many vegetables commonly eaten in Asia are unknown in the United States. In some countries American sweet corn is not considered fit for human food.

Although the division of plant exploration and introduction draws on the whole world for new plants, these are used mostly to breed specific characteristics into vegetables that already are favorites, in order to improve them in disease resistance, quality, or other characteristics.

Systematic vegetable breeding carefully and scientifically planned by public agencies in this country, is comparatively new, says the yearbook, but individuals and commercial firms for many years have produced better vegetables, largely by what is known as mass selection, though there has been some by hybridization.

The new federal station at Charleston, S. C. is devoted exclusively to breeding better vegetables. It is concerned with vegetable problems in the southeast. At Champaign, Ill., the Great Plains Horticultural Field station is engaged in a breeding program to extend the meager list of vegetables now adapted to trying conditions of the plains.

Board's Equalization Committee Will Meet
Arthur Schroeder, Manitowish supervisor of assessments, will report at a meeting of the equalization committee of the Outagamie county board Wednesday. The figures will be acted upon by the committee and presented to the county board at its November session.

Colonies Reich's Big Need, Hitler Tells Reporters

Fuehrer Stresses Peace in Interview. After Display at Nurnberg

Nurnberg, Germany—(7)—Squadrons of new fighting planes thundered over the Nazi party congress today in a gigantic display of the reich's reestablished military might.

All branches of Germany's armed forces took part in the demonstration marked the last day of the annual congress.

Final convention speeches by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Rudolf Hess, his deputy, wound up the week's strenuous program of marching, talk and party business. Germany's pressing needs were summed up by Hitler as "peace and colonies."

Those two things would permit Germany to concentrate on the great problem of obtaining food supplies for her millions, the reichsfuehrer told foreign newspaper men in an interview at Burg castle after reviewing 100,000 stormtroopers at the Nazi party congress yesterday.

Needing peace for many years, Hitler said, Germany has no time for "senseless adventures" while building toward economic self-sufficiency, a task that should occupy her for years.

But to gain that self-sufficiency the reich needs the colonies she lost in the World War and "no more," declared the fuhrer, reiterating Germany's "moral right" to her old possessions.

"Pure economics" dictate the demand for colonies which would wipe out any rich food shortages, Hitler intended. Further he predicted Europe would not "settle down" until the colonial question is solved.

Hitler denied any German ambition "to subordinate any foreign peoples in Europe" and limited German activity to "within the framework of our own people."

"The Nazis are quite calm," he said. "We don't want to do anything against anybody."

United States Leads Europe in Row Crops

Europe, outside of Russia, has almost the same total acreage of croplands as the United States, according to H. H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service, in a communication to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

However, Europe has only 65 million acres in row crops as compared with the United States' 155 million acres. In other words, the United States with the same area of cropland as Europe exposes two and a half times as many acres to the more serious effects of erosion.

Moreover, in most of Europe the rains do not come in such sudden, dashing downpours as over that part of the United States where the row crops are found. This combination of dashing rains and vast acreages in row crops has invited the terrific erosion now common in many states.

Says Constitution Does Not Leave Its Meaning in Doubt

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Within a few days the whole nation will be asked to celebrate the one hundred fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the federal constitution.

Coming in a year of controversy over the fundamentals of the constitution, it will be difficult for the occasion to be kept non-partisan or confined to the reiteration of American patriotism.

Many local organizations have been formed at the instance of a specially appointed congressional commission to do homage to the constitution, but how to celebrate a constitution?—There's the difficult problem. For the phrases of a constitution are essentially legal, if not technical. The benefits derived from them are abstract and not easy to describe briefly in concrete terms of advantage to the citizen.

There is one thing, however, which organizations of citizens can do on constitution day. It is to educate their fellow citizens, the men, women and children of the country, on a single aspect of our system of government which is more times misrepresented and misstated than any other single fundamental of American constitutionalism. It is to define accurately and truthfully the words "majority rule."

The constitution does not leave the question in doubt. It does not leave it open to interpretation by the courts or by a president or by congress. What is "majority rule" when a constitutional question is up for consideration?

First of all, the constitution says there must be not just 51 per cent of both houses of congress in agreement on a proposition, but it must be 66 2-3 per cent of both houses. Also the same proposal must be submitted to the people, to be voted on either by the legislatures or by conventions to which the people in an election send delegates.

The constitution does not say that only 51 per cent of the states constitute a majority. On the contrary, the constitution specifies 75 per cent or three-fourths of the states. This is the "majority rule" stipulated when a constitutional change is to be lawfully made.

Many uninformed people think that a 51 per cent vote by congress is "majority rule" and that, because congress is elected every two years, that is the "will of the people." But that's a fallacy which can be disproved by a reading and rereading of the constitution itself. There is a basic difference between the "legislative will" and "the constitutional will" of the people.

Original Contract

In the one instance, the congress passes laws within the limits set by the constitution itself. In the other instance, congress and the people join together in voting on specific changes to be made in the limits of the constitution. This charter—the constitution—is the original contract between the states, which can be changed only in the way specified and not by presidential will or by elections for individual candidates. Elections for constitutional changes are not mixed with persons or their ambitions. The constitutional change process was especially set apart to keep it free from personalities and to concentrate it instead on principles.

The New Dealers, including President Roosevelt, have been, by public speeches and statements, endeavoring to cultivate the idea that elections, such as were held for congress in 1934 or for the presidency in 1936, gave a "mandate" to do as the New Deal pleased about constitutional change. This is a fundamental error and a misconception. Mr. Roosevelt held the exact opposite when he was governor of New York in 1930.

The favorite New Deal argument today is that the supreme court "usurps" power in refusing to hold valid various laws passed by congress. Never nowadays is the court criticized by the New Deal for stretching the powers of congress in upholding New Deal acts. The supreme court was established by the constitution itself and the framers bestowed on it "the judicial power," and in 1879, in interpreting that phrase, congress passed a law which recognized the supreme court's right to pass on the validity of all treaties, all acts of congress and all state laws if they conflicted with each other.

When the supreme court refuses to accept as constitutional a particular act of congress, the court is not usurping power at all, but defending the people against a usurpation by congress. Every time an act of congress is declared invalid, it is the same thing as if the supreme court had said: "we refuse to subtract from the rights of the people. If the people want to give up rights guaranteed them by the constitution and wish to delegate those rights either to the congress or to the state governments as an additional power of government, let the people say so in the manner provided in the constitution itself."

This is true liberalism—to let the people rule and to let the people decide by referendum vote. It is not true liberalism, but toyism and fascism to let congress usurp the fundamental charter rights of the people. George Washington foresaw the possibility. After eight years in the presidency when he wrote his famous farewell address and renounced a third term he said: "If in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the constitution designates.

"He says we ought to do this place in 'Early American'"

"But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed."

Proposes Change

Yet President Roosevelt, in his address on March 4 last, said that the amending process was too cumbersome, that three-fourths of the states was too big a majority to require for constitutional change.

Copeland Wants Black to Resign From High Court

Points to New Allegations Of Alabama's Membership in Klan

Waycross, Ga.—(AP)—Imperial Wizard Wesley Evans said here today Associate Justice Hugo Black "is not a member of the Ku Klux Klan."

New York—(AP)—United States Senator Royal S. Copeland brought the name of Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black into the New York mayoralty campaign today, referring to new allegations that the former Alabama senator was and is now again a member of the Ku Klux Klan, and demanding his resignation "at once" from the supreme court bench.

Senator Copeland's demand was followed by Senator David I. Walsh (D-Mass.) who said that if Justice Black had not resigned "from his alleged life membership" in the Klan, he felt the justice was "confirmed by the senate under a misunderstanding and misapprehension, and the president should ask for his resignation."

"It is not true now that he is an actual member of the Klan, thus may account for the speed with which his confirmation was rushed through the senate without full investigation and without advance notice to senators," Walsh said.

Attacks Opponent
Senator Copeland, Tammany anti-New Deal candidate for mayor of New York, leveled his guns against Justice Black indirectly in an attack on his opponent in the Democratic primary, Jeremiah T. Mahoney. He accused Mahoney of "having shown, by a declaration of 'being a 100 per cent New Dealer,' that he would have sustained the appointment of Senator Black to the supreme court."

The New York senator's charges were made following publication of a copyrighted story in the New York Times which originated in the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and was distributed by the North American Newspaper Alliance, asserting Justice Black was "is now again" a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

Justice Black, now on vacation in Paris, could not be reached for comment on today's charges, which reopened the attack made on his alleged Klan affiliations during the debate on his court nomination a few weeks ago.

Membership Denied
The senator's supporters, at that time, vigorously denied that he ever had belonged to the Klan. The denial also was voiced by Dr. Hiram W. Evans, head of the so-called "Invisible Empire."

At Hyde Park, N. Y., James Roosevelt, eldest son and private secretary to the president, quoted the president as saying there was "no comment" with reference to the allegations about Justice Black and the Ku Klux Klan.

Mahoney's headquarters said he had no comment.

In his accusations against Mahoney, Senator Copeland, an outspoken foe of the Roosevelt administration, declared:

"Mr. Mahoney is tarred with the stick of the Ku Klux Klan, and he will have to sweat it out as best he can."

"I charge that Mr. Mahoney would have sustained the president even to the extent of placing a Ku Klux Klan member on the bench," Senator Copeland said.

"That is an indictment of Mr. Mahoney to which there is no answer. His silence has given consent to the continuation of the court and placing upon the court a Klansman who wears a black robe by day and a white robe of the Klan by night."

The Post-Gazette story, as quoted by the New York Times and distributed by the North American Newspaper Alliance, further asserted Justice Black held a life membership in the Ku Klux Klan and had served the purpose of enabling Mr. Black to deny membership in the Klan after his previous resignation.

St. Ignace, Mich.—(AP)—Senator Prentiss M. Brown (D-Mich.) said today he would not have voted for the confirmation of Hugo L. Black, the senator from Alabama, who was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

"I certainly think that a man who is a member of such an organization is not fit to serve on the bench," he said.

Reichsfuehrer Leads Strenuous Life, Associated Press Reporter Learns

BY MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Nurnberg, Germany—(AP)—I kept pace with Adolf Hitler five hours yesterday and I wanted to sleep till noon today.

It's a killing pace the vegetarian bachelor fuhrer sets his people at the annual Nazi party congress. A rap on my door roused me at 1:15 a. m. and a strange voice called: "We want a word with you."

We rode to Lutpold arena ahead of der fuhrer through solid lines of guards and were in the stands when he arrived to speak to 100,000 stormtroopers.

Hitler spoke for half an hour and concentrated new party standards with the Nazis' sacred "blood flag" stained in the abortive Munich beerhall putsch in 1923. This ceremony lasted two and a half hours. Then we rushed out and rode in open cars to the hilltop castle through three miles of the wildest cheering.

Behind us were three cars loaded with husky black-uniformed guardsmen.

Save for his eyes Hitler looked fresh and rested after the long public appearance. His eyes, however, always look as though he needed sleep.

At lunch in Burg castle we sat beside Rudolf Hess, Hitler's thick-eyebrowed confidant.

Hess talked of the fuhrer's personal habits and said Hitler never sleeps more than five hours. He usually goes to bed about 1:30 or 2 a. m. and reads an hour before dropping off to sleep. Natural selection, he said, is his principal literary fare and he never gets into novels.

In the morning the reichsfuehrer reads the newspaper in bed. He eats carefully, drinking only milk and water. He hasn't tasted meat in six years, and this is how his faithful adjutant believes he is able to maintain his strenuous life.

We rode back to the patient crowds ahead of Hitler, who descended from the hilltop castle to review the 100,000 troops in the market-place.

What to Do When Child Is Afraid of Other Children

LONELY
1. Don't force playmates on him—give him time to get used to other children.
2. Ask one or two, no more, children to your home.
3. Play with the group to help ease the situation.
4. Send the child to a nursery school if the neighborhood does not provide sufficient companionship.

This practical advice comes from Mrs. Anna W. Wolf of the New York staff of the Child Study Association of America.

Children—particularly young children—are naturally shy, she says. Crowds disturb them and they're slow about adjusting themselves to new situations.

So don't throw your child into a large group of children and expect instant friendships to spring up. Bring over one or two children of the same temperament and size—not necessarily age—and start playing games with them so your youngster won't be disturbed by an unfamiliar situation.

Don't talk too much. Grown-ups forget that youngsters are slow in following. A game will start them off far better than a lot of talk.

It will be worth your trouble to scour the neighborhood for congenial playmates if you can't afford to send your child to a nursery school.

Classes by Radio Begin in Chicago

Officials Hopeful Peak of Infantile Paralysis Wave Has Passed

Chicago—(AP)—Radio chimes became school bells today for 315,000 elementary school pupils as public health officials saw a leveling off of the infantile paralysis wave which has delayed opening of the public schools for a week.

Dr. Herman M. Bundesen, president of the board of health, reported 62 new cases and two deaths in the week ended at midnight last night. This was four more new cases than in the previous week, but five fewer deaths. Dr. Bundesen described the new figures as a "hopeful sign."

Five broadcasting stations surrendered microphones to teachers as a substitute for classroom work. Newspapers served as guidebooks in the use of radio for school purposes.

Broadcasts on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays will deal with science, history and geography. On Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays they will cover English and mathematics.

The work given over the radio will be checked in the classroom when the pupils return to school, principals said.

Uniform Driver's License Law Urged At Utility Session

Chairman of Bus Operations Wants Safety Classes in Schools

Green Lake—(AP)—A uniform driver's license law, better lighting of highways at night, and promotion of traffic safety classes in high schools were proposed today by H. L. Debbink, Milwaukee, in an address prepared for delivery at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Utilities association.

Debbink, chairman of the association's bus operations and maintenance committee, was scheduled to speak at the first session of a 2-day program at the Lawsonia Country club.

"Our industry needs to take positive steps toward furthering highway safety," he counseled. "The public is getting slowly aroused on the subject because of the tremendous number of deaths."

He said only one-fourth of the traffic movement occurs at night, but 60 per cent of all fatal accidents arise during that time. High school instruction on traffic safety, he added, would "encourage the next generation to be better drivers."

Debbink declared most bus operators have exercised greater care in selecting drivers than any license law so far proposed, and the bus driver has much to gain if the standard of other vehicle operators is raised.

He said only one-fourth of the traffic movement occurs at night, but 60 per cent of all fatal accidents arise during that time. High school instruction on traffic safety, he added, would "encourage the next generation to be better drivers."

Magician, Harpist to Give Lyceum Program

Children of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades who wish instruction may register while those remaining in the various grades will be occupied in some other activity. The school will be financed by donations from Appleton churches cooperating in the movement on the basis of the number of children who received instruction from each church last year.

Preliminary plans for the school were discussed at a meeting of the council Friday night. The classes last year were conducted weekly for a 20-week period which may be increased to 24 this year. A total of 702 pupils from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades in public schools received instruction.

A report of the money to be available will be heard at a meeting of the council Sept. 23 at the Y. M. C. A. when plans will be completed. It is expected that instruction will begin about Oct. 1.

Six teachers including Miss Louise Kippenhan, director, Mrs. J. R. Denyes, Mrs. R. L. Peterson, Mrs. H. K. Pratt, Mrs. P. F. Stallman and Mrs. Nick Zylstra are attending religious classes at Lawrence college to prepare for the year's work.

Health Queries Answered

Question: Is Chiropactic good for stomach trouble? Please explain.—P. J. T.
Answer: Chiropactic is a method of treating the nerve pressure in the spine thru which the nerve energy goes. It restores health in stomach trouble no matter what the ailment. There is a real hope of relief and recovery thru Chiropactic. Therefore, my advice to you is to consult me at once for further counsel. Chiropactic adds years of life and life to years.

Question: What percentage of your patients are benefited thru spinal adjustments?—K. L. M.
Answer: If the patient stays with me until I have accomplished the essential or necessary changes in the spine the results will be approximately ninety-five percent. I am speaking of cases that were experimented on by other methods and failed to regain their health and as the last resort turned to Chiropactic. I deal with the cause of disease. The fact that I can ask these questions daily is responsible for my Question and Answer column in the Post-Crescent or better acquaint the public with Chiropactic, the new science that is bringing HEALTH to thousands of incurable chronic ailments, many of which were classed as such.

Dim Lights for Safety

Counter - Espionage Not Bad When 'Spy' Is Blonde

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—During the period of emotional nonsense which followed the adoption of sanctions against Italy by the League of Nations, there was quite a spy scare in Rome and there was one particular spy, or suspect, whose activities were checked with great patriotic zeal by all the young and old bucks, military and diplomatic, who could break in on the play.

This spy, or suspect, was a medium-sized blonde with a racy, streamlined chassis, a light but highly attractive paint-job and numerous changes of scenery. She was pointed out to me in the bar of the Ambassador hotel my first day in town by Mr. Rota, the manager of the plant, a stylish little dude on the order of Adolf Menjou, the moving picture actor.

"See that woman in the leopard coat?" Mr. Rota whispered dramatically.

"Nice," I remarked, "friend of yours?"

"Friend? No," he said. "She is a spy. I have my eye on her."

"Do you need any help?" I asked.

"No joking," Mr. Rota said. "She is a spy and we are watching her night and day."

I said this was not bad work if you could get it because this spy or suspect, was something very special, but Mr. Rota told me that if I would just keep my eyes open I would see some of the finest counter-espionage said to be a German and that tended to confuse things because the Germans were not at all interested in Abyssinia, which was the talk of all the officers in uniforms who were hanging around the hotel bars and the German military attaché in Rome had said they didn't much care whether they were allowed to send an observer or not. Their interest ran to continental European warfare.

Never Had to Pick Up Luncheon Checks
Anyway, the Italians had been pegged for a German spy and they checked her night and day with a patriotic devotion that was something to behold. She seemed to have plenty of money, for she dressed expensively and wore jewelry that was distinctly not five-and-ten, but she never had to lift a check for a meal or a drink in several weeks. There seemed to be great competition among the patriots of Rome for the duty of taking the German spy to lunch and cocktails and dinner, and to the little night club which Mr. Rota conducted in the cellar of the Ambassador, by special permission of the government, in order that the foreigners in town should not think that all gaiety had vanished before the threat of war's privations.

By and by most of the American journalists in town and their wives, who ran pretty much together socially, came to know the spy by sight and they would sit around at night watching the play of wits in this game of life and death. Once in a while an American journalist would say, "If you all will excuse me I think I will go to the bar and do a little counter-espionage," and the little woman would say, "over my dead body you will."

Our spy became quite an institution with a star-line reaching from here to there—colonels, majors, lieutenants in beautiful war costumes and civilians in mufti. There was never any lack of volunteers to ply her with spaghetti and wine in the hope of working her secret from her and sending her to the firing squad, although I believe all their efforts failed in the end.

Dead Most of Work
But the principal agent of the counter-espionage was a young and graceful hand-kisser from the foreign office who threw himself into

"IS IT GOOD BUSINESS TO BUY COSTLIER TOBACCOS FOR CAMELS?"—A QUESTION ASKED BY MANY PEOPLE

ANSWER: Camels are the Largest-Selling cigarette in America

"I have taken my share of big fish-martin and tuna. I know what a rod-and-reel contest with these heavy fighters does to a man's energy. When I've gotten a big fellow safely landed, my next move is to light a Camel. A Camel very quickly gives me an invigorating 'lift'." (Signed) REX BEACH, famous novelist and sportsman

"Camel's rich, delicate flavor appeals to a woman's taste. I smoke nothing else. So many of the girls in our crowd feel the way I do about Camel's being extra-gentle to the throat." (Signed) JOSELYN LIBBY, private secretary

"I can tell Camels are made from mighty fine tobacco. There's a slight more goodness in 'em for one thing—real natural flavor that doesn't tire my taste. No girl Camels come in handy, too, at the table. I like my Camels at mealtimes. They help my digestion keep on an even keel." (Signed) GEORGE BUCKINGHAM, ship's engineer

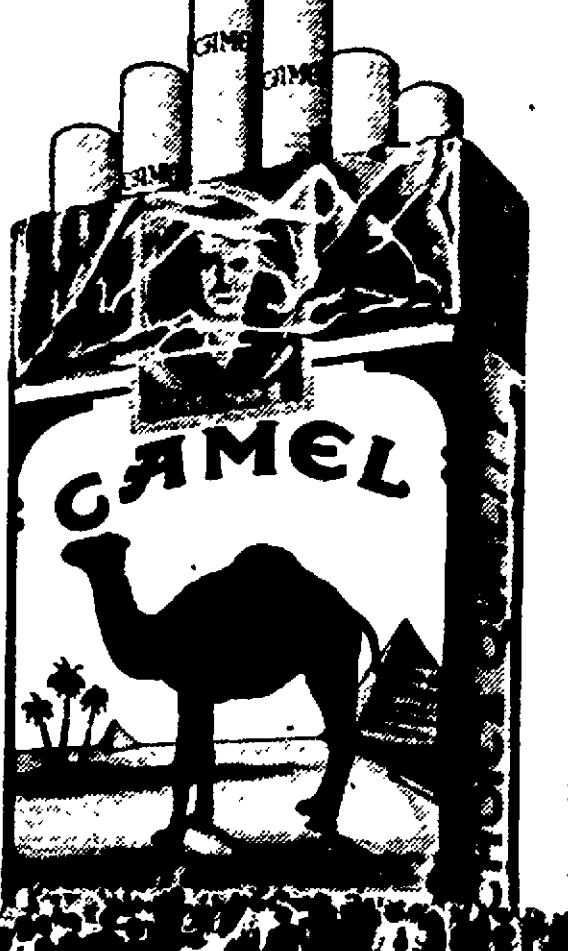

Think of what this means! The greatest pleasure for the greatest number of smokers ever given by any cigarette

AND this didn't happen by chance. Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America—and in the world—because people can and do appreciate costlier tobaccos. Smokers trust those finer tobaccos in Camels to give them more of what they want in smoking. And that makes Camel's policy of spending millions of dollars more for costlier tobaccos "good business."

If you are not a Camel smoker, try them. Millions have given Camels the severest test—smoked them steadily—and have found more pleasure in Camel's costlier tobaccos.

"No wonder so many billiard champions, myself included, prefer Camels. I've smoked Camels for a long time. I say it was a happy day for me when I turned to Camels. For I found I could smoke a lot and never have 'edgy' nerves. I want to compliment Camels on their mildness!" WILLIE HOPPE, famous billiard champ.

"I love the taste of a Camel. They're so mild. Even after steady smoking I notice no 'cigarette' after-taste." (Signed) MRS. ANTHONY J. DREXEL JR.

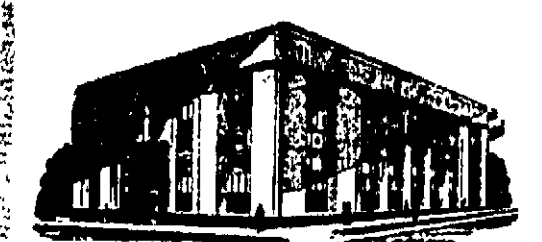

"For digestion's sake—smoke Camels! It's a rule with me. Camels help me enjoy my food no matter how tense I may be." (Signed) LENORE KIGHT WINGARD, America's premiere mermaid

"Camels are different. They have the mildness I demand. When I say that Camels don't irritate my nerves it means a lot." (Signed) LEE GEHLBACH, famous test pilot

COSTLIER TOBACCOS IN A MATCHLESS BLEND
Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic. The skillful blending brings out the full, delicate flavor and mildness of these choice tobaccos.

$250,000,000 FOR WISCONSIN

The American Automobile Association in its careful survey of motor touring says that Wisconsin will receive this year $250,000,000 brought in by tourists who use their own conveyances.

This is not only a staggering sum of money but it is a figure that should be kept in mind by Badgerites.

The impression which is so general that the tourist business is a fine thing for a few spots like Door, Shawano and Waupaca counties must be erased since that impression is highly erroneous.

Probably it would be hard to find any particular source of income that is so swiftly spread out among the people of the state as these 250 millions.

Those who watch the truckloads of freight going into any piece of summer resort territory in the summertime and compare the tonnage with what goes in after the tourists have gone home will gather a faint though beginning idea of where the money goes eventually, how it finds its way to farmer and retailer, to wholesaler and jobber, to worker and contractor.

Wisconsin, in addition to its road building program, should formulate additional means for entertaining and enlightening the visitor. Fortunately this may be done at a relatively small expenditure so long as it is planned by understanding persons.

The man who travels into another state, as suggested by the Sheboygan Press, wants to know the history of the land he traverses. Picture anyone, for instance, going to northern New York state and missing the tree with the scythe hanging from a croch where it was left in the momentous summer of 1861 when a farm hand, answering Father Abraham's call for troops, said to his boss: "I'm going off to war and I want my scythe to stay there where I've put it until I come back." The scythe is still waiting for the soldier who found his eternal home in the Virginia soil. It speaks a tragic volume.

Some work has been started and nicely done in Wisconsin in this particular. For the most part it has resulted from the loyal efforts of women's organizations proud of the history of their forebears and anxious that it be repeated correctly to those who seek it. Other effective work has been performed through CCC camps. Artistic signs of a rustic nature like those now dotting the Peninsula State Park perform good services in guiding the crowd as well as making the landscape more attractive.

The sort of work suggested cannot be done with blaring trumpets and pounding drums. Actually it may be done most effectively, and certainly more accurately by using historical societies to direct it.

The outsider knows Wisconsin for an entrancing beauty that may be matched but few places in the summertime. When he is willing to spend $250,000,000 to enjoy the summer here we ought to be more than willing to take such methodical steps as will put him at ease and tend to simplify the comfort and entertainment of his trip.

ONE GOVERNOR TO ANOTHER

In the early days of America meetings or communications between governors were happy affairs attended with a new formula for a mint julep or the latest in grog mixtures.

But the governors of Georgia and Massachusetts do not behave in exactly the way that legend tells us the governors of North and South Carolina used to behave.

The Massachusetts governor shudders at the Georgia chain gang. He may have seen the cinema based on a story written by an escaped convict.

The public is very quick to condemn any sort of cruelty to the men under sentence for crime, but too smart ordinarily to believe all the stories that are circulated by a certain class who become embroiled with the law and then cry piteously to high heaven because they have to pay an unpleasant penalty.

There is an answer to a lot of the chain gang argument that should not be forgotten. Men aren't put in the chain gang because they were kindly or considerate of others. They generally get there by cracking someone over the head with the butt end of a gun or through even more risky misconduct with the lives and limbs of others.

The fact that the Georgia chain gang is not a popular institution, so long as it stops short of cruelty or torture, is one reason perhaps why the chain gang is no bigger than it is.

LABOR IN AUSTRALIA

The editor of an Australian newspaper tells Americans on his trip here that we are far behind the times, trailing in the rear of civilization's march, because of the way we handle our labor disputes.

This editor points to Australian courts which are empowered with authority to determine upon standards of living and ascertain what are just wages. There, he says, a commission fixes a basic wage while strikes and lockouts are looked upon as weapons of medievalism and therefore banned as illegal.

We will not turn away from the Australian scene. Neither should we be insensible to Australian experiences with their system.

But a country with a few million inhabitants and one with more than 120 million cannot be handled by the same rule of thumb. When we were the size of Australia we didn't even have as much difficulty about labor disputes as Australia does.

Kansas tried the Australian system about 20 years ago. It set up a highly efficient machinery—theoretically. It likewise was bent upon abolishing strikes and lockouts and deciding every issue just as the ordinary trespass case between two neighbors is settled by a court.

Upon the bitter opposition of the American Federation of Labor the supreme court of the United States held the Kansas act unconstitutional. In order to make strikes unlawful it had to make the act of men combining together to quit work an illegal thing. Hence the supreme court said it had virtually created enforcing slavery, making men work for a set wage fixed by a tribunal even if the men did not want to work at all.

No one in America, we repeat, is going to flout the American system even if we believe that it is impractical for America.

But there is one thing about our own system we must keep in mind, the provision that we left out of the Wagner law, an honest, worthwhile, sensible and practical provision, a provision to protect the worker just as much as anyone else, the provision that defers or postpones a strike for a certain set period, we don't care whether it is 30 or 60 days, but sufficient for heads to cool off, reflection to go to work, and the public to become informed of just what the disagreement is all about.

That is the nub of the Canadian system.

And there is nothing in the American industrial set-up to be impaired in any way by the logic of such a rule.

Neither is the absence of such a provision answered by the fact that in a great many communities, our own among others, there has been a noticeable tendency to refrain from throwing down the gauntlet without patient effort and conciliation.

CUPID'S HELPERS

Smart fellows, these New York State realtors. They choose Niagara Falls for their association's annual convention, plan to discuss the probable effects of prefabrication on homes of the future.

They are going to the right place. They are, that is, unless the Falls cease to attract honeymooners before September 30 rolls around. The convention opens then.

The jokesmiths have about exhausted the supply of possible quips about the Falls and their attraction for the newly wedded. It is likely that the Niagara Falls hotel keepers are relieved. Most of the jokes were not very funny, anyway. Certainly they were not appreciated by thousands of couples that treasure in middle years memories of a great vista of rushing waters and hours that were precious.

But if the Falls no longer are a spur of ribald humor, they continue to be the lodestone that attracts hundreds of the newly married every month.

The New York State real estate men may not have considered the fact when they chose their convention city but they do have the opportunity to score a real achievement in modern merchandising.

If, as the more enthusiastic among them tell us, prefabricated homes are to be the homes of the future, they are going to the right place.

No greater instance of American efficiency could be cited than an opportunity presented to newlyweds to combine honeymooning with house hunting, to make their choice of a home and to tell the clerk to "wrap it up."

Senator Copeland will run for Mayor of New York as an anti-Roosevelt Democrat, against Mayor LaGuardia, a pro-Roosevelt Republican. It appears that the real candidate will be Mr. Roosevelt. We pick LaGuardia.

There is also the matter of Mr. Farley's candidate in the New York mayoralty contest. He is a pro-Roosevelt Democrat, strange as it may seem.

What interests me more, however, is the question of "where to now, Mr. LaFollette?" That applies to both of the Mr. LaFollettes.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

PIANO TUNER

In one short morning all the twisted strings Are straight again, and my piano sings.
Every discordant sound is smoothed away,
And harmony weaves beauty in my day.

I wish in one brief morning I could take
The jangling keys of life and straightway make Them sing again. . . I wish I had the power
To make miraculous this morning hour.

About 80 persons attended the weekly dinner-dance Saturday night at Riverview Country club. Mrs. L. J. Pinkerton of Neenah entertained 35 guests at dinner in honor of her guest, Mrs. S. G. H. John Vogelzank, Oshkosh, was drowned in the Fox river just north of the Riverview Country club grounds Saturday night. Vogelzank worked as a deck hand on the R. C. Brown which had cast anchor on the South bank of the river above the first lock and was believed to have fallen off the gang plank. It was the fifth fatal accident in Appleton in 10 days.

The navy department announced that the Panama canal probably would be opened to traffic in the fall of 1913. The date for the opening originally was set for Jan. 1, 1915.

Eight horses from the grand circuit were entered in the annual Fox River fair slated to open Tuesday in Appleton. A proclamation by Mayor J. V. Canavan designated Thursday, Sept. 19, as Appleton Day and Friday as Children's day.

PROSTIGMIN FOR MYASTHENIA

Asthenia is a five dollar word meaning weakness. Neurasthenia means weak nerves, but no such state is conceivable in physiology or pathology. Neurasthenia was a fine old quack diagnosis to string along the idle rich of the gay nineties. It just doesn't do today. Psychasthenia is a handy term because many who have it resent being called weak-minded.

Myasthenia means muscle weakness. One fairly common complaint is angiosclerotic myasthenia, intermittent claudication, intermittent limping, a spell of weakness usually with pain in the legs (usually comes on after the man (usually past middle age) has walked a short distance, and temporarily puts him out of commission. He has to sit or lie and rest a while, till the pain and weakness wear off, when he may resume his walk at a slow pace and on the level or downhill, but not upgrade, unless he is prepared to have another seizure in a few minutes. This is probably due to insufficient blood supply to the leg muscles thru arteries affected with hardening, from excessive indulgence in tobacco, from alcohol, from syphilis, from chronic lead poisoning. Best emergency relief is probably a tablet of nitroglycerin, such as men subject to angina pectoris carry to take when threatened or seized with an attack.

Another condition, not so common, is a myasthenia gravis, a chronic progressive muscular weakness without apparent atrophy or wasting, affecting muscles of the face and throat, in some cases other muscles as well. At first the affected muscles function normally, but they tire quickly and presently refuse to function at all. Difficulty of swallowing or regurgitation of food may occur after the patient has eaten part of a meal. The upper eyelids tire and droop. Effort to smile quickly fatigues and gives a pathetic expression.

A dose of prostigmin, either hypodermically or by mouth, produces a striking change. An hour or two after the dose is taken the patient recovers practically normal strength and function in the affected muscles. The smile is quite normal. But as the effect of the medicine wears off the muscle weakness returns and in the course of four or five hours the condition seems the same as it was before the medicine was given. However, the medicine is comparatively harmless, not in any way habit-forming, and may be continued indefinitely as long as it gives relief. When prostigmin is given to patients with paralytic or other conditions than myasthenia gravis it produces fibrillation and twitching in various parts of the body and no appreciable benefit in the paralyzed or defective muscles.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mexico Travel

Plan to make a tour of Mexico for about ten days. Should I be vaccinated now? (V. E.)

Answer—I do not believe it is necessary. But be sure to be immunized against typhoid, and paratyphoid A and B, by your physician. In Mexico eat only cooked foods when you are outside of the city areas—avoid all raw salads and fruits. Safety against amebic dysentery and other intestinal infections dictates that you drink only boiled water and eat only cooked food during your stay in Mexico.

Voluntary Treatment
I believe I need treatment in a mental hospital but am unable to pay for treatment. How should I go about obtaining admission to the hospital? (M. T.)

Answer—Your physician can arrange it. Some states provide for the care of voluntary patients in state hospitals. If you have no physician write or telephone the superintendent of the hospital you wish to enter.

Exhaust Fumes
We live in a court close to neighbor's driveway. When they start their cars to back out the fumes enter our rooms. Are the fumes dangerous? (A. K.)

Answer—Not if mixed with enough air.

Your Birthday

"VIRGO"

If September 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 A. M. until 12:30 P. M., from 2:30 to 4:30 P. M., and from 7:30 to 9:30 P. M. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 A. M., from 5:30 to 7:30 P. M., and from 9:30 to 11:30 P. M.

Do not trust too much to your eye-sight this day. It might prove deceiving, especially in guessing at measurements. It will pay to be accurate, so avoid haphazard methods, particularly in the kitchen. There may be attempts made to use poor substitutes in the preparation of food stuffs, building materials and essential supplies, so keep your eyes open and refuse to accept them. Honesty will be not only the best, but the advisable policy to pursue, if this day is to turn to be a satisfactory one for you. Some theories may be all right, but few are likely to work out successfully this day, which makes it expedient to do things by accepted methods with a record of good results back of them. Married and engaged couples as well as those in pursuit of happiness via the matrimonial route, should count their blessings rather than fancied grievances before complaining this day.

If a woman and September 14 is your birthday, you are apt to go to extremes in many ways. It will be good judgment and help make you happier if you try to correct this characteristic, should it exist. You may be also very frank. Frankness ceases to be a virtue if it sears the heart and soul by its ruthlessness. You ought to have great money-making possibilities through the possession of a vast amount of energy and enterprise. You can develop a wonder personality by which many friends and a fine social position should be won. Your exceptional business or professional ability might be best displayed as a doctor, trained nurse, dietician, artist, musician, dancer, singer, librarian, writer or shop manager. Your conjugal felicity and well-being seems to be assured.

The child born on September 14 will most likely develop in the bloom of youth a great ambition, which is apt to be realized. This youngster ought to be mentally and physically sound, and have a very happy life, filled with triumphs.

If a man and September 14 is your natal day, you need to be conservative and thrifty, if your bank account is to measure up to your hopes. Through medical, journalistic, literary, promotional, educational, artistic or financial activities your expectations may become realities.

Pants or Skirts

Editor Post-Crescent—Would like to reply to Mr. Runnels' uncalled for letter in Thursday evening Post-Crescent. I don't know the gentleman, but I believe I can accurately place him.

The Appleton High School band and St. Mary's High School band have been friendly competitors for years, this has been good for both parties, and controversy of this is entirely wrong as it starts something that can not always be finished as easily as it started.

Pants or skirts is only a matter of opinion and the wearer is either a lady or she isn't. What she wears makes no difference.

In defense of the Appleton High School band, wish to say that in which they have performed, you will find they take their place in music, behavior, and manners, in every one's opinion except possibly some one biased, as you seem to be. I suggest we let our children wear the trousers, and St. Mary's girl the skirts, if that is what they wish, and throw the hammer away and do some boosting for a change.

A Band Father For Six Years and Proud Of It.

The Band Record
To Post-Crescent: As an alumnus of the Appleton High school and also of the band, I believe that I have a right to voice my opinion which is like so many others concerning the article in Thursday night's "Forum."

Don't you think, Dr. Runnels, it is about time that the Appleton High school band is getting a little support instead of knocks from all you people who want only show instead of good music?

At the few concerts the band played annually while I was a member, hundreds of music lovers attend; people who love good music, and appreciate the splendid work the band does.

For three years I've been a proud possessor and wearer of the beautiful blue and gold uniform of which the young people are justly proud each year. When I passed I was not an individual; I was part of the grand organization which brings honor and fame to Appleton at many events yearly—namely, the Appleton High School band. The band on parade should be dressed uniformly. There should be no variety.

And as far as decency is concerned, I am a decent girl, and certainly the rest of the people in the band are. I know that every girl who has ever been in the band will agree with me that to ston in trousers is much more decent than a skirt. This is the 20th Century. Dr. Runnels, not the dark ages. Wake up!

An Alumna.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Just because the United States had an "adverse" balance of trade in 1936 and expects another one for 1937 is no reason for business men to start jumping off bridges.

Many economists refuse to call it an "adverse" or "unfavorable" balance of trade. Instead they call it an "import surplus." The department of commerce insists it should be simply an "unbalance of payments," since only part of it represents a trade in goods. Shipping services, interest and dividends and tourist expenditures enter into it. But the fact remains that in 1936, for the first time in decades, the United States had an import surplus. It amounted to $153,000,000. Even so it exported $34,000,000 more of actual goods than it imported. The deficit came in such items as American tourist expenditures abroad, services of foreign ships in carrying American produce, and other "invisibles." Total exports, goods, services and all were $3,483,000,000.

Bigger* One Next Year
There will be a larger unbalance of payments in 1937. The department of commerce reports there is already this year a surplus of more than $140,000,000 in imports of actual goods over exports.

The amount of tourist expenditures abroad, shipping service charges and other "invisibles" so far this year is not known. The department believes it is far in excess of the amount payable to the United States, so the "adverse" balance of trade will be fairly imposing, perhaps several hundreds of millions.

But the appearance of an "adverse" balance of trade does not mean that the republic is falling. England has had an adverse balance of trade in merchandise for generations. It has made up the difference by supplying shipping service and capital to other countries, while at the same time enticing tourists to spend lavishly in dear old England.

Foreign nations in debt to the United States can pay only in goods or services. And they can not amass a margin to pay the debts if they are required to buy from the United States as much as they sell it.

A Sign Of Good Times
Of course there are boat loads of argument on both sides of the question as to whether a permanent "favorable" balance of trade is beneficial to a nation.

The department of commerce supplies information helping to throw a favorable light on the present trade deficit. This country is better off, so is able to buy more abroad. One of the indications of good times here is the increase in American tourist travel abroad.

Then, too, currency devaluations abroad have reduced the cost to America of foreign goods. Because these prices are low, American manufacturers are buying foreign raw materials heavily. Ultimately foreign prices are sure to rise, so American manufacturers, with supplies of cheaper raw material bought in advance, can undersell foreign goods later.

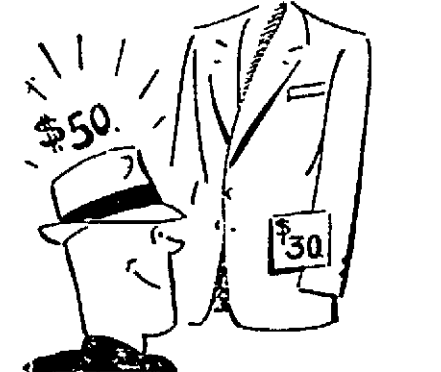

It is noteworthy, in support of this, that the principal increase in imports to this country is in raw materials, such as rubber, part of which will be later exported as finished goods.

The department of commerce insists also that the trade pact is helping break down trade barriers, but that is something likely to be a subject of political wars for years to come.

MOVING TARGETS EASIER

Casper, Wyo. (4)—A target on the run, such as a coyote loping across the prairie, is the best kind of a mark for hunters of the United States biological survey.

That fact was discovered when the hunters met in convention and held a rifle match. Ninety per cent of them could hit a moving target more frequently than a stationary object.

If you guess the prices from the models.... you'll be wrong.

There's not a $30 suit in this Fall stock that doesn't wear $50 ear and eye marks and if you judge the suits without asking the prices, you'll be $10 to $15 out of the way.

You'll think $50 . . . when the price ticket says $30. All these suits cost less than they look even off . . .

So you can imagine how much money they look like ON.

Little Contagion Found in Neenah Public Schools

Nurses Report for Year Reviews Steps to Prevent Disease

Neenah—The annual report of Miss L. Evelyn Scholl, public health nurse, disclosed that Neenah public school students suffer a little during the last year because of ill health, with the only epidemics being chickenpox, whooping cough, impetigo, scarlet fever and scabies. None of these cases were severe, the report showed.

Besides the Fresh Air camp which is conducted to build up undernourished children and to help children who have positive tuberculin test reactions, this preventing tuberculosis, the nurse spent most of the summer compiling records, making home calls for the correction of defects during which positive tuberculin test reactors are checked and advised to have X-rays. Also 100 Neenah High School boys were examined during the summer.

School health work started last September with inspection of grades and high school girls for signs of athlete's foot. More than 500 inspections were made and 54 cases were found.

750 School Visits
The nurse made 757 school visits during the year during which she made arrangements for 144 children to have physical examinations, 115 dental appointments made for them, 1,729 received complete health inspections for defects, 1,484 received communicable disease inspections because of scarlet fever, mumps and impetigo, 1,691 were given special inspections for athlete's foot and vision tests, 191 were given first aid treatment for injuries and 60 were recommended for exclusion. More than 1,300 children were weighed and measured twice during the year and 115 students had their temperatures taken.

A complete record of defects found during regular health inspections follows: 477 children had vision defects and 11 had corrections made, 22 had hearing defects, 658 had tonsil defects, 817 had dental defects, 52 had granulated lids, 25 or more cross-eyes, 237 were 10 per cent underweight, 139 had red gums, 12 had nasal obstructions, 27 had nasal obstructions due to colds, two had postural defects, 215 had enlarged cervical glands, 13 had thyroid gland defects, 18 had skin rashes and 11 had speech defects.

Tuberculin Tests
Last September tuberculin tests were given to 25 band members with the serum being furnished by the state board of health. Seven children were found to have positive tuberculin test reactions and six of them had X-ray examinations.

Besides tuberculin test clinics, 12 smallpox and toxoid vaccination clinics were held in November and December with 303 persons attending. Treatments were given for diphtheria and small pox as the result of the clinics. A goiter prevention survey was also made through the year, and milk lunches were served in the grade schools. Chest and dental clinics also were held.

Five serious emergency cases occurred during the year, one being a broken arm, a dislocated arm, a dislocated knee, a broken nose and an eye injury.

The nurse made 803 home calls during the past year. The communicable disease report submitted is as follows: Chickenpox, 148; whooping cough, 128; impetigo, 61; scarlet fever, 43; scabies, 11; pink-eye, 8; mumps, 7; measles, 4; tuberculosis, 4; German measles, 3; trenchmouth, 2; typhoid fever, 2; and erysipelas, 2.

Library Arranges Display of Books On Constitution

Facsimile of Document Shown in Connection With Celebration

Neenah—The Neenah Public library is cooperating with the committee in charge of the United States constitution sesquicentennial celebration which will start here Sept. 17 in carrying out the celebration program by arranging a display pertaining to the event, according to Miss May Hart, librarian.

An enlarged and authentic facsimile of the original constitution is on display in the lobby and books, pamphlets and pictures on the constitution and the history of that period will also be arranged in an exhibit.

The Neenah celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the constitution will open Friday afternoon at the High school when a tree will be planted and a marker erected in dedication to the creation of the document. L. P. Goodrich, Fond du Lac superintendent of schools, will be the speaker. High school and Kimberly school students will take part in the program, and the High school 75-piece band will furnish music.

The enlarged reproduction of the constitution which hangs on a standard which is the height of the average person was loaned to the library by Mrs. Helen K. Studart, a member of the sesquicentennial committee.

Miss Hart reported that the library has a large collection of books on the constitution as well as pamphlets pertaining to the documents. Special reading will also be given to the library.

The purpose of the library display is to "create a quickening of interest in the constitution and its essential relation to the history of the nation," Miss Hart said.

Marathons Rout Shell Oils, 24-0

Win First Game of Series For Championship of Twin Cities

Benasha—The Marathon Paper Mills team, champions of the Industrial league, routed the Shell Oils, Neenah champions, 24 to 0, in the first of a three-game series to determine the softball championship of the Twin Cities at the Columbia park field Sunday morning. The Marathon team blasted out 13 runs in the first inning to leave no doubt about the outcome. The attack was paced by H. Windy, who drove the first pitch to him over the building in centerfield for a home run with the bases full. Windy collected three blows in five at-tempts.

While the Marathon batters were scoring freely at the expense of Sell and Ross, "Smoky" Knoll limited the Shell Oils to three hits. Only one Shell Oil batter reached second base while the two fast doubles aided Knoll when the Shell Oils made a mild threat towards scoring.

Sell started on the mound for the Shell Oils but retired in the first inning after nine men had batted and there still were none out. Ross finished the game for the Neenah team. Errors by the Neenah team contributed to their downfall while the Marathons fielded spectacularly. George Mix ended one Neenah rally with a neat catch after a long run for a fly.

The score by innings:
Marathon 1350 015 0—24
Shell Oils 000 000 0—0

First Days Important in Management of Classroom

BY ANGELO PATRI

The new term brings new pupils. The teacher is likely to forget that the habits she drilled into the last class are unknown to this one. The routine established so carefully last term has to be as carefully established again if things are to move with ease and speed and regularity. First, traffic regulations. All movements to the right. Down this aisle, up that. Always. All outer clothing, sweaters and coats and caps and over shoes in the wardrobe, on the hooks, in the lockers assigned for them. All group movements to signals. The careful teacher teaches these movements as a lesson during the first week and keeps at them until they are routinized.

Teach responses to rapid drills, or fire alarms, the first week and keep teaching them until they are swift, silent and sure. Make these serious classroom exercises, no jokes about them. See that there are several good leaders for such drills so that if one is absent there will be no hesitation at critical points.

Teach children how to collect and distribute materials. Train the monitors. Good service means well-trained servers. One cannot take monitors for granted. Use different monitors for each set of materials; train them to responsibility and they will get something very precious out of their term of office. Monitorship is not prizes. They are responsibilities assigned members of a class, duties to be performed and measured as to efficiency.

Don't make rules. Don't say, "If a pupil does this I will do this to him." A young teacher grew weary of the steady stream of leavers and said, "The next child that asks to leave the room is going to go to the principal's office." The next child who needed to go from the room was afraid to ask. Make conditions the basis of whatever statement you make, of whatever action you take, and don't meet things before they come to you. Keep free to use your good sense.

As to leaving the room. There will be no problem about this if the children are interested in their work. Improve the teaching; improve the appeal of the lesson; get the children to like what they are doing by giving them work that they can do. Let them like what they can do. Make that the starting place. Let anybody, who asks, keep a record without saying too much about it and at the end of the week look it over. Select those who have gone too often and have their health investigated at once. The rest will take care of itself when the work is right.

Make no loud complaint about the late pupil. Impress him of the importance of those early minutes by making important use of them. Stopping to scold the late pupil takes the time of the class. If it were really important to use that time would you waste it that way? Wave the child to his seat without stopping an instant. Do your talking to him later, in private.

Do your correcting in private, if at all. Usually you will find that silence, a keen interest in the preservation of the lesson, its point, its time, its result, will carry the whole of the matter. Let the first week be set right and the term has a fine start.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, or in care of the three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

My Neighbor Says—

Bananas sliced over crumbled graham crackers and served with milk make a delicate luncheon for young children.

Bottles containing cream or milk should never be left uncovered in the refrigerator. Odors from other foods are quickly absorbed by them.

Keep a large shaker containing six parts salt to one part pepper on the shelf of your kitchen range to use in seasoning foods.

Customs of Savage Tribes

V-BLACKFELLOW DANCES
Before settlers from Europe went to Australia, the people there were savages. Even to this day, the interior of Australia contains savage tribes which keep their old customs.

A Blackfellow being painted for a dance.

Australian natives are often called "Blackfellows." They are fairly strong, but their muscles are not so good as those of many other tribesmen. Their skins are very dark, almost black, in color. It seems that they are related to the negroes, but their hair is long and wavy, not kinky. The men have beards.

Australia is the chief home of the kangaroo, and this animal plays a big part in the life of the natives. Its hide is used for clothing, and its flesh supplies the meat for many a feast.

One of the natives' dances is called "Blackfellow's." They are fairly strong, but their muscles are not so good as those of many other tribesmen. Their skins are very dark, almost black, in color. It seems that they are related to the negroes, but their hair is long and wavy, not kinky. The men have beards.

copied after the movements of the hopping, bounding animals. The "kangaroo dance" is performed by as many as 60 men.

Crouching like kangaroos, the dancers move about, one following another. They strike their hands upon the ground, sing and shriek. From moment to moment they bound into the air, and land close beside the flames of a fire — so close that we might think they were going to be burned. In their leaps, they may spring five feet from the ground, but that is only half as high as a kangaroo can jump.

Another important dance of the Blackfellows is held in honor of the "emu," an ostrich-like bird of Australia. Next to the true ostrich, the emu is the largest of all living birds. The full-grown bird is about six feet tall.

Emus are of great value to the natives, who eat their beef-like flesh, also their eggs. A female lays about 40 eggs in a season. The Blackfellow dances start soon after the coming of darkness, and are kept up until dawn. The music is supplied by a kind of trumpet, formed of wood, which give a "toot-toot" sound. There is also the clacking of boomerangs, and women clap their hands as they stand by and watch.

The faces of the dancers are smeared with colors, specially with white, yellow and red. (For Travel section of your scrapbook.)

Accurate Diagnosis of Hands Pays High Dividends

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Knowing your appreciation of unusual plays, I am sending herewith a hand that occurred in a recent team of four match. The contract at both tables was the same, as was also the opening lead. One declarer, however, fulfilled the contract with two overtricks, while the other went down two tricks. The 800 point swing was the deciding factor in the contest. It seemed to me that the successful player deserved a lot of credit for his play, but I should like to have your opinion on this point. The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	1 spade	Pass	2 hearts
2 clubs	3 diamonds	Double	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

"At both tables the seven of hearts was opened, and both declarers allowed East's ten to hold the trick. At one table the heart continuation was allowed to hold. The third round was won with the ace, and now this declarer, obviously despairing of reaching the dummy for a club finesse, could see only one chance for contract, namely, to lead the club ace, in the hope that either the king would fall or that West would have to win a club continuation and, having no hearts, would have to give the lead back to declarer in either spades or diamonds. Since the club king was with East, this plan naturally failed. East took the lead in the second round of clubs, cashed his two good hearts and then, having received a high diamond signal from West, led a diamond for the second setting trick.

"The successful declarer took quite a different view of the situation. He carefully considered the bidding. West had bid spades and diamonds. Was it not likely, that if he had held a club steper he would have doubled the final contract? And even though he might not have doubled, was it not likely that with two suits and a sure entry in the club king he would have opened one of his own suits rather than an obvious doubleton of partner's suit? The probability was that West did not hold the club king. Acting on this presumption, this declarer won the second heart lead, and cashed the ace king of spades, then followed with a third round of spades. West won with the queen, but could not avail giving dummy an entry except by returning the singleton club. West chose to lead another spade, hoping that his partner had the club suit stopped. But the dummy won with the jack and led

Do Beauty Homework In Autumn

BY ELSIE PIERCE

COME this time of the year and at least half the world is doing homework. Not only those learning their lessons in school rooms, but those learning their beauty lore. The other half sits idly by, making excuses, spending time in wishful thinking instead of "up and doing."

This is a hard season of the year to bridge. There's only one successful way to do it and that is: diligent homework, systematically planned, scientifically carried out.

With unwanted summer souvenirs still apparent, and the lovely fall fashions beckoning its very incongruous indeed to adopt all the glamorous new foibles in the face of freckles, tan coarse skin, coarse, drab, discolored hair, darkened and roughened hands and figures that aren't exactly flawless.

To bridge the seasons beautifully, to go from summer into fall with a "soigne" air, not only groomed but glamorous, plenty of homework is necessary. Even the woman of means who can afford to spend hours and dollars no end in reputable beauty salons—even she must supplement the expert care she receives there with some homework in order to prolong the good effects of the salon's skilled performers.

Inventory Again

But just like a young school girl plunging too avidly into homework, there's danger in overdoing. Keep your sense of proportion and your sense of values with you. Take inventory again. Concentrate on the particular point that you feel is your weakest. Gradually as you improve that, add others. A division of effort over too much territory usually means lost ground somewhere. So take your inventory and plan your action.

Is your hair dry, harsh, parched, ends breaking? You'll need plenty of brushing and oil treatments. Has it become discolored or overbleached by the sun? Then decide whether you want to darken it (more oil) or brighten it (bleach) or shampoo it (tint) it back to a beautiful blend, even color, or dye it (have it done by an expert).

Is your skin dry, tanned, coarsened? Are your hands rough and discolored? Have you allowed bulges to park at hips or waist? Just what do you need most in the way of Beauty Homework? Ready? Inventory...plan...action!

Old Gardener Says:

By E. I. Farrington

Chinch bugs have been troublesome pests in lawns in many sections during the late summer. This is particularly true in regions which have suffered from drought, for this pest seldom makes its appearance in seasons when rainfall is plentiful. The presence of the chinch bug is indicated by patches in the lawn turning brown. The presence of brown patches in a lawn, however, does not necessarily indicate that chinch bugs are present. There are certain lawn diseases which also have this effect. To determine if chinch bugs are doing the damage, lift a section of the sod and look for black and white bugs about one-seventh of an inch long. The best control for chinch bugs is derris or rotenone dust used at the rate of six to ten pounds per 1,000 square feet. The dust should be raked into the soil with an iron rake, but water should not be applied.

Sunny Disposition Is Star Virtue of Husband

BY DOROTHY DIX

A young woman asks: If you were a girl picking out a husband, what particular characteristics would you look for in him? Well, first of all, I should make a general survey of his personality and background. I would never marry a man, not even if he were Prince Charming himself, who was temperamental and who had to be handled with gloves. Nor would I marry a high-tempered man nor a jealous man who would keep me walking on eggs and holding my breath lest I do something unwittingly that would bring on an explosion.

DOROTHY DIX

life and who would expect his wife to pinchhit for Mother.

All these would be out. That would leave just the common or garden variety of men and the things that I should ask of them would be just the common or garden variety of virtues. I should demand of my husband no movie hero looks, no scintillating brilliance, no breath-taking achievements, but only that he be livable.

So I should begin by cocking a wary eye on his disposition. That is what counts most in a husband because it is the thing that his wife has to live with, day in and day out. It is what makes or mars her happiness, and it doesn't make a particle of difference to her how moral and upright he is if he is about as pleasant to have around the house as a sore-headed bear. She is miserable.

There are thousands of women married to grouchy saints who would swap them off any day for a cheerful snorer. It does not feed the starving heart of the wife, whose husband never shows her the slightest affection or tenderness, to the club king, but I conceded my correspondent's point, that that card probably was in the East hand. I agree that if West had held it in addition to his other strength, he might have doubled, or, at least, might have opened one of his own suits.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: My partner opened the bidding with one no trump. Next

I shouldn't look for a rich man. I would rather marry a boy who is making a hundred dollars a month at a steady job and who has shown that he is on the up and up than the son of a millionaire who has never done anything but work his father. No couple has a greater chance of happiness than the poor boy and girl who marry and climb the ladder of success together. No marriage is more doomed to failure than that in which the husband passed. I responded with two no trump. Fourth hand passed. What should my partner's next bid be with:

♠ A J 7 ♥ K 10 6 4 ♦ K J 8 ♣ K Q 6 2

Answer: Your partner should bid three no trump, as he has every suit doubly stopped.

band sits down and folds his hands in idleness and lets Mary do it.

Then I should look for a man who was a good sport for a husband. One who could take matrimony on the chin. One who would not wince on his bargain. One who would consider it just as dishonorable to lie to his wife as he would to another man. A man who wouldn't turn yellow and throw up his hands and quit as soon as marriage ceased to be a romance and settled down into a chore.

Marriage isn't easy on a man. It lets him in, as a general thing, for a life sentence at hard labor and out of all he earns—and those the board—and clothes—and those the worst in the family. I would like to know that I was getting a man who could stand the graft without going sour, and who wouldn't think because the babies cried it was a good excuse for him to step out and leave me to walk the colic, or that when I got old and lost my figure and my looks that he had a perfect alibi for ditching me for a platinum blonde.

I would pick out an affectionate man for a husband. I am no crystal gazer. Neither am I a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter who was born in a caul, and so the only way I could possibly have of knowing whether my husband loved me and appreciated me would be by his telling me so. And being a repeater. None of your frozen, dumb, take-it-for-granted husbands for me, who never give their wives a kind word until they put it on their tombstones.

And, finally, I would be very, very certain that the man I married could entertain me. Being bored to death is such a long drawn-out torture. There are so many evenings that a husband and wife must spend together, dependent upon each other for society, and the dullness is so appalling if they have nothing interesting to say to each other. So I would mark well before I selected a life companion whether I hung upon his words as Desdemona did upon Othello's, or whether I yawned my head off.

There are no perfect husbands. No woman wants one. But if a girl picks out a man with the qualities I have enumerated it is a good bet that she will live happily ever after.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

MARKING LETTER PAPER

Dear Mrs. Post: I believe you have advised that when letter paper is marked with name and full post office address the names should appear with title. Please tell me what to do in my case. As you see from the postmark and address given in this letter, I am living in a South American country. Most of my letter writing is to friends in the States, and for this reason I think my paper should carry a full address. However, to permit Mrs. John Kane on this paper seems too business like to send to friends.

Answer: Every rule of etiquette has come into being because it serves a useful purpose or contributes to beauty. On paper you are to use when writing to your friends, it is certainly not necessary to tell them your name but it is necessary to them to know (and for you repeatedly to tell them) your full post office address. Plainly then it would be proper to print this and leave your name off, or put a monogram (or initials) at the left of the sheet and the full address at the right, either die-stamped or printed. And then order separate paper printed with full name and title and address for business letters or for whenever your full name is necessary.

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me what is customary when writing to some one who has just lost a dear relative? In this case the husband lost the relative but the wife is my friend, so should I address the note to Mr. and Mrs. or to whom?

Answer: Ordinarily a note of sympathy is addressed to the one directly in mourning. On the other hand, it would be quite proper to write to the wife and ask her to tell her husband how sorry you are.

Dear Mrs. Post: A young man I met last winter while at college has written to tell me that he is coming here for several days just to see me. He told me several times that he was coming to see my family and me but I never thought he really meant it and so never mentioned anything about our family's living in a house much too small for us. Let alone taking in a visitor. And now I am afraid he is expecting to stay with us, and mother says if I think he'll be comfortable she would be glad to let him ask him. But I know he would not be comfortable, and I would rather tell him he had better go to the hotel. What do you suggest that I do about this?

Answer: Write him a note and tell him how glad you will be to see him but that you are sorry you are not able to ask him to stay in your house and tell him frankly why. You might give him the name of the best, or nearest hotel, and yet leave it open so that he can choose sleeping with your little brother, for example, if he prefers.

SYNOPSIS: Kay Crandon of the Lazy Nine impulsively hires Ted Gaynor, a jobless puncher. He helps her fight Josh Hastings, a "friendly" neighbor who wants to buy her ranch and marry Kay. Ted pummels Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings sneaks up and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. A girl named Marion finds Ted and her nursing saves his life. The sheriff arrests Ted on a tip unconsciously given by Kay. His trial for Scrap's murder is going against him when Kay stops it by protesting on a technicality. She is kidnapped by Hastings and locked in a cellar.

Chapter 41
Marriage, Or Else—
THE sigh of Josh Hastings brought to the surface Kay's subconscious feeling that he was at the bottom of this outrage, and a sense of furious indignation swept away her fear at this confirmation of her suspicion.

"How dare you bring me to a place like this?" Her voice vibrated with scorn as she faced him, proudly erect.

He came in and started to pull the door to behind him, without speaking.

With a broken cry of rage, Kay sprang for the slowly closing door and tried to force her way through, but Josh Hastings closed his hand over her wrist like a vise and pulled her back, as he slammed the door. Kay tried to wrench herself away, and called loudly for help, but the grip on her arm only tightened.

"Don't be a fool!" Josh Hastings finally made himself heard above Kay's shouts. "There's nobody to hear you."

Patting, and with her breath coming in great suffocating gasps, Kay braced herself against the closed door. In the darkness she could make out the bulk of Josh Hastings' figure, and feel his protruding eyes peering at her.

"There's nothing for you to worry about," he said at last, "if you'll behave like a sensible girl. The time has come for us to reach an understanding."

Kay's eyes burned at him out of the darkness, but she made no answer as she waited, every nerve tense and tingling, for what was to come. How far would Josh Hastings dare to go?

He paused a few moments, as though summing up his arguments to himself, before he brought them out. When he finally spoke, his voice had the coaxing tone that one might use toward an unreasonable child.

"Now there's no point in getting all wrought up," He loosened his grip somewhat, although it still held with a firmness that admitted of no pulling away. "I had to get you somewhere where I could make you see reason, even if it took some time to do it."

There was no mistaking the veiled threat in his suave tone. Kay held herself rigid and motionless, waiting for him to go on.

"The first thing to get clear is that I intend to marry you," he went on. "The sooner you give in on that point, the easier it will be. Not that it will make any difference in the long run."

"I'll never marry you!" Kay said through clenched teeth.

"I expected you to say that," he observed calmly. "But in an hour or two, or a day or two or"—he paused for sinister emphasis—"a week or two, if necessary, you'll think differently."

A deadly, weakness gripped Kay's knees, and she nearly collapsed at the realization of how completely she was in this man's power. It would be easy enough for him to give out some plausible explanation of her absence to Aunt Kate, and no one else would have any way of knowing she had disappeared. Shrinking back, she stared at Josh Hastings and waited.

"He'll hang, Unless . . ."

"Why you pulled this fool stunt at the trial, God knows," he went on at last, "unless you think you're"

Candles Light Club as Miss Suzanne Jennings Is Wed to George Dyer Beck

IN THE soft light of candles, a golden-haired bride and a tall young bridegroom exchanged wedding vows Saturday night at Riverview Country club in the presence of a small group of close friends and relatives. The bride, Miss Suzanne Jennings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Jennings, 1124 E. North street, wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned on simple princess lines, with a real lace collar, for her marriage to George Dyer Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beck, Jr., Philadelphia. Her short veil fell from a delicate seed-pearl band around her head, and she carried a white bouquet of summer orchids and sweet peas.

She and her father were preceded to the altar of palms, flowers and candelabra by the bridesmaids, Miss Marjorie Haviland, Philadelphia, cousin of the bride, and Miss Barbara Jennings, her youngest sister, and the maid of honor, Miss Peggy Jennings, another sister. All three wore soft white chiffon dresses and carried bouquets of gladioli in fall colors. Matching flowers were in their hair.

Guests were ushered into the large ballroom where the ceremony took place by Morris Alva Bradley, Cleveland, Ohio, and William Forbes Miller, Rockford, Ill. Ribbons Mark Aisle

At 8:30, when the opening chords of the wedding march from Wagner's "Lohengrin" resounded from the organ installed in the lounge, the Rev. John B. Hanna, pastor of the First Congregational church, the bridegroom and his brother, C. Weston Beck, Philadelphia, who served him as best man, took their places at the altar. The bride and her attendants came from the back of the ballroom down an aisle marked by white satin ribbons.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. Beck and his bride greeted 300 relatives and friends at a reception at the country club.

Mrs. Jennings, the bride's mother, wore a gown of orchid chiffon over dusty pink and carried orchids. Blue lace fashioned the gown worn by Mrs. Charles W. Beck, Jr., the bridegroom's mother. She wore a corsage of yellow orchids.

After the reception the couple left for a honeymoon at Hot Springs, Va. They will be at home Nov. 1 at Elkins Park, Pa. The bride attended Lawrence college, where she became affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, and later was graduated from Wells college, Aurora, N. Y. Mr. Beck, who is a member of Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, was graduated from Penn Charter Preparatory school, Germantown, Pa., and Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.

Appleton Pair, Wed 25 Years, Honored At Surprise Party

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Falk, 721 W. Commercial street, were surprised Saturday evening by a group of relatives and friends on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary. WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your screen, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month.

Too often the honeymoon express is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain.

For three generations one woman has told another how to get "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife. Take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Choose to Be Charming

BY JANETTE SERREGE
Copyright, 1937, by Janette Serrege

This is the fifth of a series of articles on "Charm" by Miss Serrege, who will lecture at the Knights of Pythias Castle Hall at 8 o'clock in the evening of Sept. 20-21-22-23, under the auspices of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

CHOOSE TO BE CHARMING!

Who is the best homemaker in your neighborhood? Mrs. Feinercus, who can bake a cherry pie quicker'n a cat can wink its eye? Mrs. Flickit, in whose bright and shining house no speck of dust has ever been known to settle?

Time was when the good homemaker who enjoyed a reputation in her neighborhood for turning out the tastiest cookies and having the shiniest floors felt she had earned the greenest laurels the gods could bestow. Her business in life was to bake cookies and shine floors, and if she attended to these matters well, she fulfilled her destiny.

Now everybody likes crunchy cookies, and I suppose things ought to be kept clean and in reasonable order.

But the wise homemaker has learned that her business of making a real home extends far beyond these things. She knows a frilly frock may be as important as a delectable doughnut. She knows that fresh gaiter can add as much to a meal as the sauce that is the envy of the Ladies' Aid.

She doesn't neglect the important business of providing an ample board and cheery hearth. Perhaps

Jack Sees Chance for Farmer-Labor in 1940

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Harry Jack, Hortonville, prominent Wisconsin farmer leader and new head of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, told newspapermen on a visit to the capitol over the weekend that he "wouldn't be surprised" to see a new national farmer-labor party enter the American political scene in time to participate in the 1940 elections.

Jack saw difficulties, however, in any attempt to get farmers and labor together into a working political alliance because of their opposing economic interests. It may be accomplished, though, he added, if "we put the leaders of each group into a room, lock the door, throw away the key, and let them fight it out."

Pool Is Leader
The Milk Pool president pointed out that his organization was one of the charter groups of the Wisconsin Farmer - Labor-Progressive federation, together with eight other farm and labor organizations, which when it was organized in 1935 was intended as the starting gun in a nation wide effort to get labor and agriculture together in a common political vehicle.

Jack pointed to the growing resurgence in the middlewest, and the shifting alignments in national politics as evidence that the time is ripe for the sprouting of a new national party.

Another state farm leader, Herman Ihde, Neenah, head of the Wisconsin State Grange, and the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, a federation of 33 farm groups comprising about 85,000 members, declined to comment on the prospects of a farmer-labor third party, declaring that both of the organizations which he heads are officially non-partisan in politics.

He did state, however, that the Wisconsin Grange will approve the plan supposedly contemplated by Governor LaFollette for the reorganization of state government, namely the replacement of many of the present bureaus and commissions, with their three or five member directorates, with a single department head, whose policy will be determined by a board of directors who will serve on a per diem basis.

The Grange "will go along with the governor" on that plan as applied to the department of agriculture and markets, nominally directed by three commissioners, but now for various reasons operating without a single qualified administrative official. The Grange is interested in getting that department functioning actively once more, even if it means reorganizing it under a single commissioner, he indicated.

He also conferred with Milo K. Swanton, executive secretary of the Council of Agriculture, on final plans for the Council's annual convention at Green Bay next month, when 3,000 Wisconsin farmer delegates will discuss common problems and hear addresses by nationally prominent speakers.

Peter Derfus Dies After Long Illness

Sherwood — Peter Derfus, 61, life-long resident of this vicinity, died at his farm home just south of the city limits after a lingering illness Sunday morning.

Born at Sherwood, Jan. 11, 1876, he was a member of the Holy Name society and Catholic Knights of Wisconsin.

Survivors are the widow; one daughter, Miss Helen Derfus, Sherwood, and one brother, Michael Derfus, Sherwood.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 Wednesday morning at Sacred Heart church with the Rev. Peter Grosnick in charge. The body will be at the home until the time of services.

Moore would put him in the limelight as a presidential candidate in 1940.

Clee's new criticism of Hoffman's administration and his assertion Hoffman aspired to the governorship again in 1940, climaxed a fight which began when Hoffman became governor in 1935.

Clee, called a "pussyfoot" in politics" by Hoffman, whose sales tax proposal three years ago started his stormy administration, said in a statement today:

"The selection of my opponent, sponsored and presented to the New Jersey electorate by Governor Hoffman... would be in effect a blanket endorsement by New Jersey Republicans of the three fanatical years of the Hoffman administration and a popular mandate for a continuance of that administration by proxy."

Good Fellowship Loop
Starts at 7 O'clock:
Lions at 9

New London — New London bowlers will begin season's play this evening when the first league takes over from Prah's leagues at 7 o'clock. While league schedules are still unsettled an active bowling season is forecast with about half a dozen new teams making an appearance.

Three new alleys will be available to bowlers after Oct. 1, it was announced by R. V. Prah, manager of the present alleys. Grand Chute 4, Menasha 3 (five innings)

NEENAH—The Neenah Merchants clinched the Northern Valley league championship in true champion's style Sunday by taking both ends of a doubleheader to conclude the league season. In the morning the Merchants defeated the Menasha Eagles by a 5 to 2 score and in the afternoon they trounced Appleton, 6 to 2. The victories give the Merchants a season's record of 15 wins against 5 defeats and the undisputed title in the league.

Neenah opened the scoring in the first inning of the first game when K. Handler received a free trip to first base when hit by one of Beach's offerings. He moved around the bases on an error on Bill Handler's grounder, a walk, and a fielder's choice on Gartke's roller. The Eagles rallied to tie the score in the second inning when Smazenski was hit by Jerome, reached third on two infield outs, and scored on a sharp single by Peck.

The Merchants put the game and the championship on ice with a 4-run rally in the fourth inning. Christofferson started the drive with a single. Haufe and Cheslock were nicked by Beach's pitches to fill the bases. Jerome won his own game with a single to right which scored two men. Ken Handler drove in the third run of the inning with another hit while the fourth marker dented home plate while Bill Handler was being thrown out at first. Poor play by the Eagles contributed to the Neenah scoring.

Beach, who led the Menasha attack with two blows in three at-tempts, scored the final run for the Eagles in the sixth when he hit safely and counted on an error. Jerome held the Eagles to 4 hits while striking out nine. Beach allowed 5 hits and 5 runs in his turn on the mound. Smazenski pitched the last two innings for the Eagles and allowed no hits or runs. As both teams had afternoon games, the morning encounter was called at the end of seven innings.

Pawlowski of Menasha turned in the fielding gem of the game with a pretty one hand stab of a hard-hit line drive in left field in the fifth inning. Jerome connected solidly twice in three attempts to lead the Neenah hitters.

BEAT APPLETON, 6-2
With the championship already clinched, the Merchants defeated Appleton, 6 to 2, in the afternoon game. Menning limited Appleton to two hits up until the ninth inning, both by N. Miller, while his mates counted, six times. After four innings of air-tight baseball the Merchants opened the scoring with four runs in the fifth with the aid of a single hit.

Cheslock opened the rally by beating out a slow infield hit. The Appleton infield then blew sky-high. A Wonsler dropped an easy pop-up. D. Schade made two wild throws over first base and four runs counted before Appleton settled down.

Two more runs were added in the sixth when Cheslock again opened with an infield hit. Menning survived on an error and both scored when Bill Handler drove out a long triple. Babcock was thrown out by the pitcher to end further scoring. The Merchants clinched the title by the southpaw slants of Menning. Appleton put two hits and two runs together for two runs. Bedford singled and T. Murphy survived on an error by Christofferson. Both scored before Menning settled down and struck out the last two batters. K. Handler and Cheslock led the Neenah attack with two blows each while N. Miller hit safely twice in four attempts for Appleton, although neither blow figured in the scoring. Menning set down nine via the strikeout route and walked only two. Seigworth struck out five and walked three.

KELLY SCORES WINNING MARKER FOR SEYMOUR
Seymour baseball team defeated Bonduel yesterday afternoon at Seymour, 1 to 0, in the first game of the Land o' Lakes league playoff. The winning marker came in the last of the ninth and was scored by Arnold Kelly, pitcher, as shown above. Kelly got a life on an error, a mate did likewise, all advanced a base on a sacrifice and Kelly jagged home from third when Harvey Hartjes slammed a single between short and third. Kelly had his own way with Bonduel on the hill and allowed only two hits. The Bonduel catcher walking away from the scene is Schultz. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

CLINTONVILLE—The FWD Truckers capped the second half championship of the Wolf League Sunday afternoon when they blanked Shawano, 2 to 0, there.

Tomlin, FWD moundsman, turned back 12 Shawano batters via the strikeout route and walked 1. He has made an enviable record while hurrying for the Truckers during the last half of this season, winning each of the six games. Ascher, on the mound for Shawano, struck out three and walked two.

The Clints scored the only two runs of the game in the second inning and were never threatened by Shawano. Schmidtke reached first on Borns' error and took second on an infield out. Kersten was then given a free trip to first after which Smith let loose with drive through Born, the second baseman, scoring the two runs. Born was credited with an error on the play.

Scrimmages on Tap for Big 10 Football Teams

Coaches Map Intensive Training Schedules For Squads

CHICAGO—Big Ten football camps get down to serious business this week, with all reports pointing to one of the most intense training drives in Western conference history.

Several mentors, including Bernie Bierman of the title-favored Minnesota Gophers, had players working with blocking and tackling dummies during Friday's opening drill. This week most of the camps will hold scrimmage sessions.

Coach Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern's champions had 10 new men sprinkled among the first two teams in his initial drills and this week will give several sophomores a chance to do their stuff under near-game conditions. Minnesota has a sophomore named Marty Christianson who may land the regular fullback job.

Scrimmage will be held early this week at Iowa, where Coach Irl Tubbs is working with 60 men, while Harry Kipke of Michigan indicated he would send team against team Tuesday. Ohio State's Buckeyes are going through one of the hardest early training drills ever remembered at the school, and Harry Stuhldreher is losing no time whipping his Wisconsin Badgers into shape.

Cy Young Reveals "Secrets" of His Record Pitching

Atlanta—(U)—They said old Cy Young got by on his smoke, that he didn't have much of a curve ball, but they were wrong. Denton True (Cy) Young, for 22 years one of baseball's greatest pitchers, let out the "secret" today. In addition to his blinding speed, the famous old time hurling ace had two curves, "and nobody knew about it."

"I've never told this before," said Cy, puffing at an old briar pipe and sprightly looking for his 70 years. "One of my curves sailed in there as fast as my high, hard one and broke in the reverse. That was what made it hard to hit. It was a narrow curve that broke away from the batter, and went in just like the fast ball. And I had one of those wide-breaking curves."

When Cy Young quit baseball after the 1911 season he had struck out 2,832 men. His record for victories stands. He lives on a farm now in Ohio near Peoli, where, he says, they have two houses and a post-office-store, "and I can still pitch—pitch as much as any young fellow in the country."

Jordan Footballers Will Play Six Games

Takes First Game From Bonduel by Score of 1 and 0

Arnie Kelly Hurls for Victors and Counts Winning Marker

SEYMOUR—Arnie Kelly bested Lefty Raasch in one of the tightest pitchers' battles ever staged on the Seymour diamond Sunday to win the first game of the playoff with Bonduel. For eight innings both men pitched shutout ball. Both teams backed up their pitching in big league style coming through with sensational plays that cut off base hits.

Then came the last of the ninth with Kelly, who had held Bonduel to two hits, one of them a scratch infield hit, as the first batter. He hit the ball to shortstop who fumbled it just long enough to allow Kelly to reach first. Vandewalle, next batter, fouled off two trying to sacrifice and then hit to the short stop, who again fumbled, and both men were safe. Ralph Puls then laid down a perfect sacrifice to advance both runners and Hartjes came to bat with 500 Seymour fans begging for a hit. He obliged on the first ball pitched with a clean single to left and the ball game ended with Kelly jogging home with the winning run.

Both teams played as if everything depended on this game and a lot of fine plays were turned in. Bonduel's only two errors came in that exciting ninth inning. While Seymour got six hits to two for Bonduel, Raasch kept them well scattered not allowing over one in any inning. Wagner starred in the field for Bonduel while Ness made a real circus catch for Seymour in the ninth.

Next Sunday, the second game of the series will be played at Bonduel. A win Sunday for Seymour will give it the championship while Bonduel will have to take the next two if it is to win.

The Coach's Busy Day...

WORRY
The typical busy autumn day for the football coach begins when a sports writer asks about prospects. The coach assumes a faraway look. He sees no hope. These photos are of Temple's Pop Warner.

POSE
Ingenious publicity men think up the poses for pictures taken daily. Warner began his fifth year as Temple coach this September. The team gave him a cake football. Hence this action shot.

WORK
There is some time for football in the early days of football training, strange as that may seem. Here Warner, a veteran of many campaigns, explains plays, clatters on the blackboard, to his team.

WATCHING
The coach watches while his players lumber up. In this case they are jump-running down a row of auto tires. The coach did this once himself. But he doesn't have to any more.

SLEEP
The coach even sleeps football. Sometimes he gets in a little of that sleeping on the football field—after his strenuous day. Or maybe this is another publicity photo.

Athletes Barred From Post Olympic Events

New York—(U)—The executive committee of the American Olympic association last night approved a recommendation to bar United States athletes from all post Olympic competition except customary meets against the British empire, described by the committee as a "well established feature of international sport."

A special committee headed by Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft presented this and 161 other recommendations to the executive group. The report of the committee also recommended that no alternates for the boxing and wrestling squads be sent to future games and that hereafter the first four finishers in the 100 meters and the first four in the 400 meters make up the 1,600-meter team.

The committee also recommended that women's track and field squads be greatly curtailed, one assistant manager instead of three be carried for men's track and field, the United States stay out of Olympic hockey competition until the rules were altered to permit only strictly amateur teams, and that a special committee be formed for water polo.

Budge Defeats Von Cramm in Tennis Finals

Promises Friends He Won't Turn Pro for at Least a Year

NEW YORK—(U)—The long, cruel tennis war has ended; Donald Budge has the national championship he needed in his business, and now there's nothing to do but worry for the next twelve months or so.

The worrying will be about evenly divided between Budge, who is now a very austere young man, and officials of the U. S. Lawn Tennis association, who put a pile of money in the treasury the past 10 days because Budge was playing in their show.

When Budge won that fifth and final set from Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany late Saturday afternoon, adding the American championship to his "World" title won at Wimbledon, he paralyzed himself, so to speak, into a very large sum of currency. He could, by turning professional, assure himself something like $100,000, but Budge has promised his old friends, the tennis fathers, faithfully, that he won't touch a cent of it for another year, at least.

Riggs Coming Up
But there is a young man named Bobby Riggs coming up, also from California. It took Von Cramm five tough sets to lick him in the semifinals, and he won't be 20 until next year. Bobby doesn't make any secret of his intentions. He means to win the championship and then cash in.

Looking back on the championships, though, all this worry about the future is beside the point. The tournament was the most successful yet from a financial viewpoint, and it produced a couple of worthy champions. Anita Lizana, the spirited little half-pint from Chile, proved as great a standout in the women's division as Budge did in the men's. More or less under-rated throughout the play, the seniorita showed Saturday's big crowd a brilliant all-around game in squelching Jadwiga Jedzejewska, the Pole.

COACH OBEYED CITY MANAGER

Dallas—(U)—"I hope I don't get a ticket for parking too long," laughed Football Coach Homer Norton of Texas A. and M. after a long conversation with City Manager Hal Moseley of Dallas.

"Just send it to me," joked Moseley, who vigorously joked the "fixing" tickets.

Norton did. It cost Moseley $1.

Giants and Cubs Split Twin Bills; Yanks' Lead Cut

New York Game and a Half In Lead for National Pennant

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer
THE National league pennant picture, folks, is as clear as a cup of coffee.

The pennant races went into their final and deciding three weeks today, and, although the New York Giants are a game and a half in front, the thing is no nearer being decided than it was last April. Here's the way the top three teams shape up:

Giants	79	51	—
Cubs	73	54	1 1/2
Pirates	71	62	2 1/2

Over in the American league, the New York Yankees, despite their hitting slump, look as certain as death and taxes, sporting a 10-game lead. They are enjoying this layout:

Yankees	88	43	—
Tigers	79	54	10
White Sox	76	59	14

The picture changed little yesterday as the Giants and Cubs each split, although the Yanks lost a half game of their lead by gaining only an even break with the Washington Senators, while the Detroit Tigers were taking the White Sox apart, 4-0, behind Tommy Bridges' 3-hit hurling in a single game.

Lose to Bees
The Giants had the unpleasant prospect of tangling with the Bees' two "old man" rookie sensations, but they got by Lou Fette, 3-1, in the opener. Jim Turner then set them down, 6-4, handing them their third setback in their last nine starts.

The comebacking Cubs' pitchers turned in a pair of fair-enough jobs in breaking even with the Pittsburgh Pirates. Larry French tossed a 4-hit shutout for a 5-0 decision in the opener and the Bill Lee dropped a 4-2 affair in the nightcap.

The best pitching of the day was turned loose at Yankee stadium. Young Ken Chase, with a 7-hitter, hooked up with a 5-0 Ruffing, with a 5-hitter, in the opener, and Ken won, 2-1. Lefty Gomez fanned eight and allowed five safeties to take the nightcap, 2-1, from Ray Phebus with the help of Joe DiMaggio's forty-second homer.

Bob Weiland's 5-hit, 2-0 win in the nightcap enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to break even with Cincinnati after the Reds took the first game, 10-7.

The Phillies and Dodgers split, Brooklyn taking the second game, 9-5, on a homer with the bases loaded by Eddie Wilson, after the Phils outlasted them for a 4-3 tenning win in the opener.

An 8-run ninth inning gave the Red Sox a 13-6 edge over the Athletics. The Cleveland Indians showed the home folks a pair of winning performances over the St. Louis Browns, 6-3 and 6-1.

Kaukauna Police Pension Law Is Still in Effect

New Attempt to Change Ordinance May be Made At Next Council Session

Kaukauna — The main subject of discussion at the summer meetings of the Kaukauna council has been the police pension ordinance of 1928. Confusion has arisen among Kaukauna residents due to the manner in which this measure was supposedly repealed but is yet in effect, as to just what the entire pension set-up is about.

Ordinance No. 286, as originally passed at a council meeting April 3, 1928, provided that 1 per cent of the monthly pay of each member of the police department be deducted from his salary and placed in a fund to be called the police pension fund. A policeman receiving $1,600 a year would accordingly contribute $16 a year to the fund, the fund would then pay him $16 a month.

In addition to money paid into the fund from police salaries, all rewards received by police department members and all monies received from the sale of unclaimed properties were also to go into the pension fund.

As to the retirement of members of the police department, it was provided that any member having served 22 years or more may retire, and shall be paid a monthly pension equal to one-half of the salary he was receiving at the time of his retirement. A man receiving a salary of $1,600 per year, for example, retiring after 22 years of service, would receive a pension of $800 for the rest of his life.

Provision for the necessary funds to pay whatever pensions might arise was made by ordering an annual tax against all the taxable property of Kaukauna.

Little was then heard of this ordinance until May, 1936. On the 15th of that month Chief of Police Richard H. McCarty resigned, and thus became eligible for pension under the provisions of the ordinance. As he was receiving a salary of $1,800 at the time of his retirement, he was eligible for a monthly pension of $75, or for $900 per year. This pension has been paid to him up to the present time.

The situation now is this: there is at present $1,304.40 in the police pension fund, according to City Clerk Lester J. Brenzel, out of which $900 per year must be paid to McCarty, and, in addition, other members of the police department may become eligible for pensions. Obviously it will not be long before the fund is exhausted as only about $100 a year is paid into this fund, but under law the payments must continue, and they will be continued by taxing Kaukauna residents.

Introduces Ordinance
Realizing this condition, Alderman T. L. Seggelink, chairman of the ordinance committee, introduced an ordinance on police pensions, to amend that of 1928, at the June 29 council meeting, and it was decided to study the ordinance and take action at the next meeting.

Seggelink's revised ordinance provided that members of the police department should pay 5 per cent of their monthly salaries into the fund, instead of 1 per cent. It also provided that a retired policeman should receive a pension of 50 per cent of his salary at the time of his retirement.

Kaws Don't Look So Good In Practice at Chilton

Kaukauna — The practice session held between the Kaukauna and Chilton football teams last Saturday afternoon at Chilton proved conclusively to some 100 spectators that Coach Paul E. Little's charges have a long way to come in order to approach the ability of last year's northeastern conference champions.

Although no official score was kept, Chilton's two touchdown margin was not nearly a just indication of its superiority. The Kaws were completely outplayed — out-run, out-passed and out-tackled. There was, however, one department of the game in which Kaukauna clearly excelled—that of fumbling.

The only Kaukauna regular to make no errors, was George Hilgenberg, who played the entire game from the sidelines, running backwards with his teammates when on defense, and standing still with them when they were supposedly carrying the ball.

Alger Snags Passes
What little praise Kaukauna players deserve goes to Bill Alger, who snared several passes for long gains, Lee Lambie, veteran left tackle, who represented Kaukauna's line in most of the plays, and Carl Kobussen, who did a good job of relief quarterbacking.

Chilton took the ball at the outset and marched down the field, using a mixture of passing and running plays, their progress being finally halted by Floyd Hooyman's pass interception. Chilton seemed to complete passes almost at will, time and again drawing the Kaws defense out of position. Their running attack functioned as well, reaching off first downs in two or three plays, and often in one.

Kaukauna's line was powerless to stop the small Chilton backs. The only adeptness they showed was in getting into the paths of their own ballcarriers, thus assisting the Chilton linemen, who needed no assistance in the least.

Subs See Action
All the Chilton substitutes saw action, pushing the heavier Kaw line about almost as successfully as the first-stringers they relieved. The session ended with each team taking the ball on its own forty-five yard line and attempting to score. Kaukauna's powerhouse smashed off eight yards in a series of four downs, with Chilton, ignoring the opposition of the team of defending champions which will start against Shawano next Saturday, running and passing to a touchdown and extra point in just four plays.

Kaukauna's most successful effort of the afternoon came when Cliff Vanevenhoven hurled a long pass to Bill Alger, who lateraled to Peterson, who ran for a score.

Use Laterals
Both teams lateraled at every opportunity, with the Kaws lateraling several times without an opportunity.

Kaukauna's longest offensive effort carried about 100 yards—but took about 40 plays to do it. Even then they had to be given back the ball several times after Chilton pass interceptions or fumble recoveries. The Kaws seemed to ignore all of Coach Little's instructions of the week and played the came as they thought it should be played.

In all fairness it must be admitted that the Kaukauna team did not look "much worse than last year's team against Chilton," in the words of Coach Little. It now remains to be seen whether this year's aggregation can recover in the manner of last year's. There will be no spare moments in practices of this week, with few so-called first string players certain of appearing in their accustomed positions for the kick-off at Shawano Saturday.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Cambridge, Mass. —(AP)—Wonder what an astronomer thinks about? Here is the thought of one inspired by looking at the star Sirius, brightest in the heavens except the planets.

"Imagine, if you can," this astronomer writes anonymously in "The Telescope," a tube one foot in diameter and fifty million miles in length. Such a tube would extend approximately from the earth to Sirius."

Coming down such an imaginary tube to your eye the light of Sirius takes nine years to make the journey. "In all this great tube," the astronomer goes on, "would be found only one-tenth of a gram of
